U. S. PREPARES TO LAUNCH NEW WAR ON RUM RUNNERS

With Powers Broadened, Dry Navy Will Extend Operations Field

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—The coast guard today prepared to launch a new offensive against rum runners, as a result of a recent U. S. circuit court of appeals decision that American ships are under jurisdiction of U. S. laws anywhere in the world.

With this new powerful ruling and broader authority to enter British waters, as provided in the anti-smuggling agreement perfected by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews with the English officials, the dry navy is expected to extend its activities into the very havens of the liquor smugglers.

Government patrol boats have been scouring the Atlantic and Pacific waters for bootleg convoys as far out as 100 miles but, unless the liquor ships came within 12 miles of shore, they were not molested. Now, with the court ruling and the British agreement, all boats carry the American flag and found operating illegally will be seized.

Attorney General Sargent today issued a statement confirming the court ruling. He pointed out that "the laws of the land follow the flag."

The coast guard also will resume its policy of seizing rum boats flying foreign flags caught within the 12-mile limit.

The government, Sargent said, will ask the supreme court to uphold hold over judicial bodies authorizing forfeiture of the British rum ship Quadra. The Quadra was seized less than eight miles off San Francisco while unloading whiskey into motorboats.

NAVY ARSENAL IS HELD TOO SMALL

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—The Lake Denmark, N. J. naval arsenal, which exploded with a damage of $47,000,000 and loss of 21 lives, was not large enough for storage of vast amounts of high explosive, according to the report today of the board of inquiry which investigated the disaster.

Recommendations that the arsenal be rebuilt and that congress be asked to authorize two new types of high explosive arsenals, one on the east coast and one on the west coast territory, each covering at least 100 square miles, were made.

A "neutral" zone two miles wide should surround such arsenals, the report said.

New Evidence In Killing Is Sought

CANTON, O., Aug. 3.—Detectives investigating the murder of Don R. Mellett, publisher of the Canton Daily News, began a search for new evidence today, as the story of Steve Kascholk, the "mystery witness" held in county jail, showed possible weaknesses.

Kascholk gave himself up soon after the murder and told of being hired with Patrick McDermott, for whom a nation-wide search is under way, to "beat-up" Mellett, naming their employers.

He withdrew the last minute, he said, but McDermott remained in Canton until after the assassination.

Royal Heirs to Sail Wednesday

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3.—While Crown Prince Gustav Adolf of Sweden, played golf and tennis at the William H. Crocker estate, Crown Princess Louise was shopping down town today, on her last day's stay in America. They sail tomorrow, at noon, for Honolulu and the Orient, enroute back to Sweden.

Stuck by Rose Thorn, Woman Given $438.66

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3.—Mrs. Elizabeth Schroeder was awarded $438.66 damages by the industrial accident commission today, as an outgrowth of the attack by a normally sedate rose, suddenly possessed of viciousness.

She was employed in a florist shop, said, and was fondling a rose of intriguing shade and contour when the "crazy thing," as she put it, stood up and plunged its thorns into her hands. She was unable to use her hands for several weeks, she said.

JUDGE TO OUST CURIOUS FROM MURDER TRIAL

SEATTLE, Aug. 3.—That sensation seekers may have a difficult time "crashing the gate" at Wallace C. Gaines' murder trial, became evident today, as court opened for the second session.

Superior Judge Robert M. Jones, who will conduct the trial of the former service man and county employee, accused of murdering his 22-year-old daughter, Sylvia, told newspapermen that the courtroom would be cleared of minors because of the expected nature of the testimony.

"But I'm going farther," Judge Jones said. "Whenever the testimony becomes smearable, I'll order every man, woman and child in the audience out of court."

Eight potential jurors were seated when court reconvened today. Seventeen veniremen had been examined and nine rejected.

FIND BOY'S BODY; 2 YOUTHS NABBED

BURBANK, Aug. 3.—Three youths were held in jail for questioning today, following their report to police of the discovery of the body of William Hoffman, 13 years of age, on San Fernando road.

The boy's body, with the left arm almost torn off, and head badly crushed, was found last night. It has not yet been determined whether the boy was struck by an automobile or was murdered, according to deputy sheriffs.

The youths held are Guy Whitson, Frank Richards and Cecil Kinnaird. All three are 18 years of age and live in Burbank.

The Hoffman boy lived at 444 Windsor boulevard, Glendale.

South American Road Hits Snag

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 3.—The half-billion-dollar paved highway from Southern California to Buenos Aires, proposed by the Andes Trail association, ran into a snag today in the office of Commissioner of Corporations Edwin M. Daugherty. Before the organization can sell memberships in California under a state corporation permit, it must mature its plans more thoroughly, Daugherty has ruled.

The applicants, it was stated, did not explain sufficiently the manner in which they expected to raise the half-billion dollars required for the project.

U. S. Wins Point In Osage Trial

GUTHRIE, Okla., Aug. 3.—The government's prosecution in the trial of W. K. Hale and John Ramsey, ranchmen, accused of slaying Henry Roan Horse, rich Osage Indian, won an important point today, when Federal Judge John H. Cottrell ruled the confession of Ramsey, made in connection with the Osage's death, may be admitted to the jury as evidence. The case is one of several growing out of more than a score of mysterious deaths in the Osage country.

MRS. CHRYSLER DIES

GLENDALE, Aug. 3.—Mrs. Mary Chrysler, 76, mother of Walter B. Chrysler, Detroit automobile manufacturer, is dead here today, following a prolonged illness. The body will be taken to Salina, Kas., for interment.

KEYES LAYS AIMEE CASE BEFORE JURY

District Attorney Offers Every Scrap of Evidence To L. A. Investigators

HOLD SECRET PARLEY

Los Angeles Official in Conference with Four Lawyers Employed by Pastor

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 3.—Accompanied by Deputy Joseph Ryan, District Attorney Asa Keyes, late today, went before the county grand jury to present "every scrap of evidence" possessed by his office regarding the Aimee Semple McPherson case. No witnesses were to be called. Keyes said he intended to outline the evidence secured by his own investigators and the attorneys for the evangelist. If, after hearing Keyes, the jury desires to continue the probe, the district attorney said he would bring before the body every man and woman who has "a scrap" of evidence material to the case.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 3.—After convening at 10 a. m., today, to hear testimony upon which further action in the Aimee Semple McPherson case depends, the grand jury was notified by District Attorney Asa Keyes that he was not ready to present his evidence at the appointed time.

Indications were that Keyes would not appear before the jury until this afternoon.

At the time he was supposed to present his evidence to the jury, Keyes was holding a conference behind locked doors with his aides and four attorneys representing Mrs. McPherson.

The voice of Judge H. J. Barden, of Monterey, could be heard in the corridors, demanding that the district attorney's office issue "a statement of fact of the entire case."

Money Effort Alleged

It was understood Judge Barden was seeking to present to the jury information he claims to have gathered at Carmel and Monterey, pertaining to the alleged method of a witness there to "get money from Mrs. McPherson." Barden, it was stated, admittedly based his claims on "hearsay."

Keyes, it was learned, informed Mrs. McPherson's attorneys that he would personally go before the grand jurors, lay what facts he had in front of that body, and leave the entire case to the jury.

The grand jury will be called upon today to decide whether the "Mrs. George McIntyre" of Carmel-by-the-Sea was a nurse, designated for convenience as "Miss X," or Aimee Semple McPherson, Angelus temple evangelist, who was "kidnaped" immediately before the date of the Carmel episode.

Conflicting Evidence

Thrusting upon the inquisitorial body the burden of deciding whether "Mrs. George McIntyre" of Carmel-by-the-Sea was a nurse, designated for convenience as "Miss X," or Aimee Semple McPherson, Angelus temple evangelist, who was "kidnaped" immediately before the date of the Carmel episode.

Included will be the affidavit of Kenneth G. Ormiston, former radio operator at Angelus Temple, in which he admits he was "George McIntyre," but denies that "Mrs. McIntyre" was Mrs. McPherson. The woman who accompanied him to Carmel was a nurse, unnamed except as "Miss X," according to the statement.

The balance of the evidence is understood to consist of the data obtained by Deputy District Attorney Joe Ryan and Captain of Detectives Herman Cline, purporting to prove that "Mrs. McIntyre" was the woman evangelist.

Affidavits by Air Mail

Ormiston's affidavit arrived by air mail from Chicago. District Attorney Asa Keyes regarded it "genuine." It was believed to have been

Explosion of Still Takes Lives of Two

(By United Press)

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 3.—Two youths were burned to death early today, when they were trapped by flames, following explosion of a still in a house in the Italian colony.

The victims were Sam Minichella, 19, and Joe Borgogna, 20. Mrs. Mildred Minichella, mother of one of the victims, escaped with slight burns and managed to rescue two young children from the burning building before the roof collapsed.

Police reported they found 50 barrels of whiskey mash and other evidence that a still had been in operation.

EXPENSE ACCOUNT OF THOMPSON PAID

MANILA, Aug. 3.—Col. Carmel Thompson, President Coolidge's personal representative, need worry no more concerning his expenses. The Philippine house of representatives has voted to pay them.

Following brief debate, wherein it was recalled that the Philippine government paid the expenses of the Wood-Forbes survey in 1919, the measure was passed. It is expected to pass the senate. Colonel Thompson said he would be glad to accept the offer.

Manila is celebrating the return of Senator Osmeña who worked against adverse Philippine legislation in Washington. Following his arrival he was formally welcomed by officials in the legislative building.

TOKIO ROCKED BY VIOLENT TREMORS

TOKIO, Aug. 3.—A violent earthquake shook Tokio at 6:20 p. m. today, sending the residents of the city scurrying to the safety of open spaces. The quake was the most violent felt here since January, 1924.

Street car and telephone service were interrupted and a suburban electric laboratory exploded. The flames soon were extinguished. The seismic center was in Tokio bay.

It was reported that other cities felt the quake, but had not been damaged. No injuries had been reported a few minutes after the quake was felt.

Oust Engineer On State Road Body

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 3.—Removal of G. R. Winslow, maintenance engineer of the state highway commission, because of "inability to keep step with progress, under constantly changing conditions," was the subject of discussion today in state circles.

Winslow, according to State Highway Engineer R. M. Morton, had been asked for a resignation, but refused. The layoff order resulted.

Thomas H. Dennis, of Sacramento, has been named as acting maintenance engineer.

Native Protestants Slain By Soldiers Who Intervene in City of Irapuato

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—The case of the Protestant Episcopal church, at San Jose Degradia, occupied by Mexican police, may form the basis of informal representations to Mexico under and law regulations, but this will depend upon further legal study of the matter here, it was declared here today.

The state department for the present will permit the U. S. embassy in Mexico City to handle the case, unless further complications arise.

PROTESTANTS SLAIN IN MEXICO, REPORT

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 3.—Dispatches received here today said several Protestant Mexicans had been killed in the town of Irapuato, state of Guanajuato, and that the disaster incident to the attacks of Protestants had necessitated intervention of troops. The houses of several Protestants were reported to have been burned.

So far, there has been no confirmation of the report that a Protestant minister in Irapuato was hanged to a tree and his church burned.

Irapuato is a town of about 26,000, near the town of Guanajuato, and on the railroad connecting Mexico City with Guadalajara, the latter one of the most intensely Catholic centers in the republic.

Arch Priest Suspended

Mauricio Jacobo Calvo, arch priest attached to the basilica of Guadalupe, has been suspended from his position by Archbishop Mora y del Rio for an attempt to provoke a schism among Catholics of Villa Guadalupe, making an effort to remove religious services in disobedience to the collective pastoral letter calling for the abandonment of churches.

Angel Vivanco, a prominent Catholic at Villa Guadalupe, began the attempt, it is understood, influencing Calvo and three canons, who also were suspended, to join him.

Catholic townspeople opposed the move. The suspension was urged by Estaban Solo Ruiz, president of the Court of Honor of the knights of St. Mary of Guadalupe.

Take Over Half of Churches

It was estimated today that 50 per cent of the churches of Mexico were in the hands of the municipal authorities. The local health department announced that the churches in the federal district and the cathedral would be cleaned and fumigated this week. Under the doorways of foreign and native Protestants, Masons and some Catholics have mysteriously appeared slips of paper bearing the following sentence:

"He who denies being a Catholic is a renegade because, in the baptismal font, he swore to follow Jesus Christ."

Native servants seemed to be strangely affected when they heard about the slips.

Thirty-nine priests, who refused to register in accordance with the new laws, and three laymen composing the first committee of the Catholic League for the Defense of Religious Liberty, were to have legal hearings this week.

The struggle between church and state today seemed to have come to a digressing stage, each party having settled down to verbal campaigns to undermine the prestige of the other.

The government's easy victory in the first phase of the conflict and President Calles' determination not to give ground in the future, made it appear likely today that the

COMMITTEE HEARS WHO HANDLED CASH

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—A public utilities agent, L. E. Fisher, of the Illinois Traction company, "handled the money" for the campaign for Senator William B. McKinley in southern Illinois, Rufus O. Shepherd told the senate primary investigating committee.

Shepherd said Fisher's corporation was "Stideman's interest" and that he furnished $2500 for 62 precincts in East St. Louis.

"We paid poll workers from $5 to $15," the first witness at resumption of the investigation declared. "I don't know how many workers we had."

Fisher did not say where he obtained the money, Shepherd said. "I understand he furnished money for other parts of the city, but I don't know how much," said the witness.

COPS SCAN SKY FOR PLANE CARRYING 3 BANK ROBBERS

(By United Press)

MODESTO, Calif., Aug. 3.—Authorities throughout the state were watching for a bandit plane today, in which a trio of 20th century bandits escaped, after holding up the First National bank, at Crocks Landing, near here yesterday.

The three, unmasked and armed with sawed-off shotguns, forced two bank officials into the safe, scooped up $2500 in cash and then drove to the waiting plane. Only one man saw the plane take off after the robbery. It circled the town and disappeared, he said.

Authorities were working on the theory today that the plane undoubtedly the one stolen from Los Angeles two weeks ago, may have crossed the Mexican border.

HEAVY RAINFALL AT YUMA INUNDATES PART OF TOWN

(By United Press)

YUMA, Ariz., Aug. 3.—Portions of Yuma were still under water today, as a result of a storm yesterday, during which 1.44 inches of rain fell within an hour.

A. Alvarado, 45, was electrocuted, after he had waded to his home on a low lot through water waist deep and attempted to turn on an electric light.

The embankments of an irrigation canal broke, the waters flooding a large area and doing damage amounting to several thousand dollars to stores and residences in the vicinity.

Traffic was held up on the Bankhead highway for several hours, as the result of small washouts.

KELLER TRIAL POSTPONED TO FIRST OF YEAR

The delayed trial of Fred W. Keller, accused embezzler, was again deferred today, probably permanently, when Superior Judge E. J. Marks continued it to Jan. 3, 1927.

At that time, it was understood today, the charges against Keller will probably be dismissed at the motion of the district attorney. Keller will then have served a year and a half in the county jail. Thus was effected a compromise that was attempted and which failed yesterday. Attorney O. A. Jacobs, representing the defense, was reported to have offered to enter a plea of guilty for Keller if the prosecution would recommend a jail sentence rather than a term in prison. Keller had already served six months in jail in connection with transactions upon which the present charges are based. No agreement could be reached yesterday and the trial was reset for today. Meanwhile negotiations continued with the result that today the defense asked for the postponement of the case to next January 3. Keller will be forced to remain in jail during the interval, in default of $5000 bail. He has been in custody since the termination of his first sentence.

The district attorney's office, it is said, feels that if Keller remains in jail until next January, the ends of justice will have been served and he will have been adequately punished for the offenses charged against him. He is accused of conspiracy to embezzle funds of the California Industrial Finance corporation, which he promoted in Santa Ana. He was an official of the corporation. The information filed against him in court also contains counts charging violation of the corporate securities act and conspiracy to violate the act.

ARREST SCION OF N. Y. MAN AS DRUNK DRIVER

Booked Sunday at the county jail on charges of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, and speeding 57 miles an hour, Duncan C. Pell Jr., said to be the son of a wealthy New Yorker and himself salesman for a Los Angeles agency of a high priced automobile, is out on bail of $500, made to jailers.

Pell was arrested by Frank Vaughn, state traffic officer, on the Newport road. Vaughn said he found two quarts of alleged gin in the machine and that Pell had been drinking. A girl in the machine with Pell, was not held.

Although booked on a felony charge, no complaint has been filed against Pell, it was learned today. Vaughn said he would file the complaint either today or tomorrow and that he would probably add a charge of possession of liquor against the man.

Pell will be given an arraignment before Justice Kenneth Morrison this week, Vaughn said.

U. S. MAY ACT IN MEXICAN CRISIS

church would begin a long, patient campaign of obstruction, simultaneously looking forward to the day when a new government in Mexico might return the church to its former status.

Success for such a campaign as the church seemed to be embarking upon depends upon two factors.

1—Absolute unity of the Catholic party.

2—Discovery of a leader capable of aligning the various powerful political elements in Mexico to control the next federal elections.

No such leader is in sight.

Expect Washington Action

It appeared today that certain Catholic circles expected some action from Washington in their favor, although the situation twice has been declared to be a matter for the people of Mexico to decide.

Reports that several state governors have objected to the federal program of municipal seizure of church property were not believed to have any serious significance in view of the fact that to date every state governor opposing federal policies has been removed from office.

OBREGON STANDS BACK OF CALLES.

NOGALES, Ariz., Aug. 3.—Former President Alvaro Obregon, in a statement today, declared the religious conflict in Mexico will "disappear when the directors of the Catholic church in Mexico announce they are ready to obey the laws."

Obregon is considered a likely candidate for the Mexican presidency in the next election.

President Calles was a member of the cabinet during Obregon's administration.

Obregon blamed "high dignitaries of the Catholic church" for the present difficulties in Mexico, and said peace would be restored when the clergy advised its followers to comply with the law.

WILL TAKE COLLECTIONS FOR BENEFIT OF NUNS.

EL PASO, Tex., Aug. 3.—Collections will be taken in local Catholic churches next Sunday for the benefit of destitute nuns who have fled from Mexico. It was announced today at the office of Bishop Schuler that 100 of these nuns are finding shelter in El Paso and 300 more are in San Antonio. All are Europeans and have been teaching in Mexico.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS HEAD IN STATEMENT.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 3.—The 800,000 members of the Knights of Columbus in North America will go on record as definitely opposing the attitude of the Mexican government in the present controversy. Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty said at the opening session of the supreme council today. More than 500 delegates applauded Flaherty's statement that the "momentous issue" would be dealt with "in no unmistakable way." He indicated that the attitude of the U. S. government in the controversy would be taken up at an executive session tomorrow.

Political Announcement

FROM G. S. RICHARDSON
"In seeking the office of county auditor," said G. S. Richardson in a written statement today, "I wish to say above all else it is my earnest desire to make a clean, upright and conscientious campaign, not posing as anything but just what I am, a hard-working, common citizen. I will do my level best for all the people in Orange county, of all creeds, political parties, according to his or her rights."

"I desire no bitterness, no vituperation, no unwarranted incriminations, but a straightforward administration of the problems involved in trying to run the county auditor's office."

"This I shall try to do with as much honesty and efficiency as human limitations will permit. I consider your county, my county, and it will be my best pleasure to serve you well if you elect."

C. N. MOZLEY

Attention was called today by a supporter of C. N. Mozley, candidate for district attorney, that Mozley has had 23 years of active law practice in Illinois, Missouri and California. For six years, Mozley has been a resident of Orange county, nearly all of that time having been spent as chief deputy in the office of the district attorney.
Figures gathered in the office are quoted to show that he has appeared as prosecutor in 95 per cent of all of the criminal cases that have been tried in the superior court during the five and one-half years that he has been in the office.

During the war, Mozley served as an assistant draft administrator.
He had three sons in the service, two in the Marines and one in the tank corps.
Mozley was born near Vienna,
Ill., in 1870.

Native Daughters To Hold Picnic

The members of Santa Ana parlor, No. 235, Native Daughters of the Golden West, are on the qui-vive as it was announced at last night's meeting of the parlor that a Spanish dinner al fresco would be served at Orange County park next Thursday evening. Mrs. Muriel Bray, who is in charge of the picnic, said that Duffy will be the chef and that, aside from saying that the menu would be in Spanish style, he is keeping the remainder of the plan dark.

A stage has been chartered to take the Daughters to the park, leaving the Crown stage depot on East Fifth and Bush streets at 6 p.
m. sharp. Arrangements have been made to take members home, who live at a distance from the station.

Arrangements must be made by tonight with Mrs. Bray, phone 1103-M, and all Daughters are urged to attend, as the affair has been arranged as a "get-acquainted" party. Following dinner, dancing and cards will be enjoyed until 10 p. m.

Mrs. Bertha Hitt, the new district deputy grand president, and president of Long Beach parlor, paid her first visit in her new capacity and was warmly welcomed.
Owing to technicalities, Mrs. Hitt was not able to install the new officers of Santa Ana parlor last evening, but will do so on Monday, August 16. The following will be the new staff, election having taken place last evening:

Mrs. Mamie C. Schonberg, president; Mrs. Louise G. Mock, past president; Mrs. Mary Moore, first vice president; Mrs. Eunice Fox, second vice president; Mrs. Olive Lopez, third vice president; Miss Dorothy Thurston, corresponding secretary; Miss Mildred Fox, financial secretary; Mrs. Stella Stiff-tress, treasurer; Mrs. Genevieve Hisgals, marshal; Mrs. Muriel Bray, inside sentinel; Mrs. Clara M.

Garten, outside sentinel; Miss Elsie Carter, Mrs. Elizabeth Marsile and Mrs. Cora Ross, trustees.
Mrs. Hitt gave a brief talk, during which she complimented and criticized the work of the parlor, and promised to visit Santa Ana often to assist the officers to do efficient work.

The matter of having a lodge home was discussed, a fund having been started for the purpose and Mrs. Louise Mock, the president, promised to have a speaker at a future meeting to explain the procedure for carrying out the plan.
The Native Sons will be invited to listen-in at the address.

The Knights of Columbus hall was beautifully decorated with dahlias, gladioli and zinnias in large baskets and an efficient committee, of which Mrs. Muriel Bray was chairman served a dainty supper at the close of the meeting.

Mrs. Olive Seba will head the committee for the next meeting, August 16, when installation of officers will take place.

Judge Marks to Speak At Federation Luncheon

Mrs. A. P. Nelson, president of the Orange County Federation of Women's Clubs, announces that she has made arrangements for Judge Emerson J. Marks to speak for twenty minutes during the luncheon hour at the meeting on Thursday next of the executive board of the federation to be held at Costa Mesa with the Friday Afternoon club. Judge Marks will speak at 12:30 p. m. having for his subject the probation work of the county, which is under his supervision. This arrangement was made as Judge Marks could not be present in the afternoon. All federated clubwomen are invited to attend the meeting, as the subject of law enforcement is of outstanding interest.

Arrangements for the southern district convention will be discussed, Dr. Jessica Raiche of Anaheim, chairman of child welfare, will give a report and the program for the day will be replete with interest to the clubwomen of the county.

RETURN WATCH STOLEN FROM S. A. RESIDENCE

Mrs. E. W. Dahl, 1019 West Myrtle street, has back in her possession a wrist watch, stolen from the home of her mother, Mrs. M. L.
Willets, 1517 East Fourth street, on June 21, by a youth, who slipped into the house, stole the watch and $5 in money and who was arrested and is now being held in Wichita, Kans.

The recovery of the watch was made through efforts of the sheriff's office, which has been at work on the case since the robbery.

Immediately following the robbery, Herman Zabel, finger print expert, sent out circulars, giving a description of the stolen property.
On July 27, a boy by the name of Henderson, 15, was arrested in Wichita and the missing watch was reported to have been found on his person, together with other watches.

The boy is alleged to have stated that he stole the watch from a house near San Diego, and the Wichita police notified the San Diego police. San Diego officers checked the number of the watch against the serial number sent out of Sheriff Jernigan's office and found it to be the same, so referred the case to the sheriff's office here.

The watch arrived here last night, was identified by Mrs. Dahl and returned to her.

MRS. BROOKS GIVES NEW VACCINE VIEWS

"Following the enlightened example set by the city council of Santa Ana, some weeks ago," said Mrs. Barbara Brooks today, "the city of Los Angeles has given her dogs their freedom from the dangerous needle of the vaccinator."

"The dog owners of Los Angeles are jubilant today, after one of the bitterest fights ever staged on the floor of the council chamber, when the councilmen, in response to the storm of protest, refused to pass the unpopular dog ordinances, under consideration for two weeks, one of them making vaccination compulsory for dogs in quarantined zones and the other a leash ordinance. Both ordinances were voted down."

"Dr. Parrish, the health officer, present just prior to the opening of discussion, was sought in vain by members of the council, before the vote was taken. Certain members of the council desired to question the doctor regarding alleged utterances on his part, casting doubt upon the value and efficacy of the rabies vaccine, but he could not be found."

"In contrast to the action of the cities of Santa Ana and Los Angeles, is the action of the Orange county board of supervisors, who passed the unpopular dog vaccinating ordinance for Orange county without a dissenting vote, solely at the instigation of the health office, and without any attempt at investigation upon the part of the board, thereby creating a situation detrimental to the economical interests of the community, inflicting hardship and suffering upon helpless cats and dogs, and filling the minds and hearts of our citizens with a fear and mistrust detrimental to health and happiness."

"The modification of the drastic ordinance does not go into effect for 30 days, leaving the situation still unresolved, and reflecting still further upon the consistency of the board, who on the one hand announce that the ordinance was to be repealed in 30 days, at the same time passing an amendment that does not go into effect for 30 days."

"The amendment is not acceptable to dog owners, but they are herby warned that even that measure of relief is not available for 30 days."

"The original ordinance is still in force, giving enforcing officers the right, if they choose to exercise it, to invade private premises, in clear violation of the constitutional rights of citizens and vaccinate a dog, even though that dog is tied up or kept confined within the house of the owner."

"Our candidates for office are expressing their views upon this subject and an announcement of interest to dog owners and others opposing this ordinance, will be forthcoming soon."

WOMAN PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO DOUBLE CHARGE

Lavania Skavron, 21, 1728 Slauson avenue, Los Angeles, who holds the distinction, if any, of being arrested on the same road twice in an hour, the second time within a few minutes after she had paid a $25 fine in Justice John Landell's court, Sunday, pleaded not guilty yesterday, and is being held in jail for trial.

The woman was taken from the county jail yesterday afternoon to San Juan Capistrano to face Landell on a charge of reckless driving and being drunk. It was her second time before the same judge.

Mrs. Skavron was first arrested by Ernie Sawyer, state officer, on a charge of cutting in. She was taken directly to court, even though it was Sunday, where she paid a $25 fine. A few minutes later, she was arrested south of San Juan Capistrano by State Officer Vernon Barnhill, who charged her with reckless driving and being drunk.

Bail was fixed at $250, which the woman did not furnish, and trial was set at San Juan Capistrano for Thursday, August 12. Officers say she was arrested in Los Angeles on a speeding charge, to which she is scheduled to answer this week.

DECK HAND DIES AT NEWPORT BEACH

Foster Skelley, 35, of San Pedro, a deck hand employed on C. S. Mead's "Amazon," of the yachts participating in the regatta at Newport Beach, suffered a fatal heart attack early this morning while on the boat. His body fell overboard and later was recovered in 15 feet of water.

An inquest held at Newport by Coroner Charles D. Brown, it was decided that death was due to heart failure. Skelley was married.

A search was started for Skelley when he failed to answer calls of the yacht owner. An investigation was made, with the result that his body was located in the water a short distance from the boat.

Court Notes

Suit for Ejection

In a complaint on file today in superior court, Dewey P. Jackson seeks to eject Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Stouffer from possession of property, to which he claims ownership. His suit also asks $1000 damages and $75 a month rental from June 7.

Sues for Crash Damages

An automobile crash between cars driven by M. L. Brown and Cirilo Segovia, on the Brea-La Habra highway, last February 18, resulted in a damage suit filed today in superior court by Brown, who sued Segovia for $588.34. The action was brought through Attorney's Scarborough, Forgy and Reinhaus, of Santa Ana.

Would Foreclose Mortgage

Foreclosure of a $25,000 mortgage against 19.17 acres of land at Tus-tin was sought today in a superior court action filed by Grace G. Reid against Byron K. Hackler and others. The Santa Ana firm of Scarborough, Forgy and Reinhaus appears as counsel for the plaintiff.

Charge Dismissed

Robert G. Adams, who was charged with issuing a fraudulent check for $50 to the First National bank, of Santa Ana, was released today in Justice K. E. Morrison's court when the charge was dismissed.

Postpone Burglary Trial

Preliminary hearing of three Mexicans, E. Sais, A. Villa and A. C. Baca, who are charged with burglary of the Olive garage on July 9, was today continued by Justice K. E. Morrison to August 5 at 9 a. m., because of the absence of witnesses. Sais, Baca and Villa are alleged to have broken into the garage at night, making away with a load of automobile tires. Attention was attracted to them when they drove through Santa Ana in the early morning hours and Santa Ana police officers saw tires protruding from the rear of their machine. The officers followed them but were eluded and when the Mexicans were finally overhauled they had no tires in the car. At the home of Villa, in Delhi, however, the police found a number of tires that were identified as the property of the Olive garage, which is operated by E. P. Ehlen.

Sue Razor Magnate's Fund

King Gillette, son of the safety razor magnate, who has extensive property interests in Orange county, was named defendant today in a superior court action filed by W. T. Newland, prominent Huntington Beach resident, who claims Gillette failed to pay agreed lease rental on 200 acres of oil land he leased from Newland. Newland asks judgment for $3600 and interest, his suit being filed through Attorney D. G. Wetlin, of Orange. According to the papers on file, Gillette leased the land September 18, 1925, under an agreement to pay $1800 per month, starting six months after the lease was signed, and continuing for a period of six months unless the lease was sooner terminated. The lease, it is said, was terminated by Gillette May 23, 1926. Newland alleges that installments due April 18 and May 18 were not paid.

Leaves Large Estate

An estate listed at $26,000.42 was left by the late Elias L. Lybarger, of Anaheim, to her heirs, Lillie M. Hartung, of Venice, and J. Kenyon Lybarger, of Anaheim, it was shown today when the two heirs filed a petition in superior court for appointment as administrators. Attorney Leonard Evans, of Anaheim, represents them. The estate includes $16,530 in stocks, bonds and notes, $6000 in real estate and $1373.42 cash.

Negro Complains Against Gamblers Who Struck Him

Sheriff's officers are seeking three Mexicans who are accused by Albert Cowles, negro, with forcibly taking his automobile away from him, near Delhi, Sunday night.

Cowles reported to the sheriff's office that he had been in a dice game with the Mexicans and had won all their money. They asked him to drive them to Santa Ana, and while the quartet were on the way, he was hit over the head with a pipe and thrown from the machine, he related.

The Cowles machine was located by officers on a secluded road south of Santa Ana.

NEW BUSINESS COLLEGE WILL BEGIN AUG. 17

The Business Institute and Secretarial school, located at 415 North Sycamore, opened today for the enrollment of students, according to announcement of O. S. Johnston, formerly of Hutchinson, Kas., where he and his partner operate what he says is one of the largest business training schools in the middle west. The first session of the new Santa Ana business college, will be held at 9 o'clock, in the morning of Tuesday, August 17.

Many students have enrolled for the respective courses, Johnston said, and it is his expectation that the present quarters, which will permit enrollment of 250 students, may soon prove too small.

Forty typewriters, new furniture and equipment has been purchased and installed, preparatory to the opening of the school.

Johnston made the following comment on his Santa Ana school:

"The Business Institute and Secretarial school is financially associated with the largest office employment corporation in California, with representatives in every large city in the United States, and, while the officers of the school could safely assure all graduates of the secretarial courses good positions, the officers are at this time guaranteeing jobs to the first 25 graduates."

Prof. C. M. Drake, of Stockton, has been elected principal of the new institution. He is said to have had 20 years of experience as a teacher in business colleges. T. Gray Johnston, of Detroit, Mich., where he was associated with the Business Institute, will be associated with his father, O. S. Johnston, in the administration of the school here.

G. B. DANIELS IS TAKEN BY DEATH

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—Gilbert B. Daniels, 70, for many years prominent in California political and civic life, died today, following an attack of acute indigestion. Death came with virtually no warning.

Daniels entered California public life as owner, near the start of the Spanish-American war, of the Oakland Enquirer. While in control of this publication, he initiated and promoted many reforms, one of them culminating in the workmen's compensation act. He became a leader in the political readjustment which resulted in formation of the Progressive party.

Prior to ownership of the Oakland paper, Daniels had been an obscure figure, owner of a stationery store. When, many years ago, he sold his newspaper interests to W. W. Chapin, he had become a recognized leader throughout California and a man of prominence through many states.

He was appointed by Gov. William D. Stephens to the post of superintendent of the motor vehicle department, this marking his entrance into state activities.

He next served as state market director and then as chairman of the state board of control, until about three years ago, when he resigned to tour Europe.

On his return, he was appointed by Gov. Friend W. Richardson as a member of the state board of prison directors. He was serving in this capacity at the time of his death.

Daniels was born in Dupage county, Illinois. In 1870 with his brother and parents, he came to California. They settled in Humboldt county where the family pioneered in ranching.

AUTO TRADES MEN HEAR FISH TALES

A program of musical numbers and instructive speaking will be provided at the next meeting of the Automobile Trades association of Santa Ana. The determination to sponsor a program at future meetings was reached yesterday when the organization met at noon at Ketter's cafe.

Tommy Willis and Jack Gledhill were appointed chairmen of the program for next Monday. The men promise a lively meeting. The programs will be presented with the idea of securing a larger attendance to the meetings.

The organization members have been enjoying some excellent times recently, with fishing trips on the deep sea forming the major subject of discussion. Members of the association were a long time getting down to business yesterday as "fish tales" occupied the attention of the members. M. S. Robinson, president, was in charge of the meeting.

George S. Richardson, candidate for county auditor, made a short talk.

'HELLO GIRL' FREE OF LIQUOR CHARGE

Pretty little 21-year-old Agnes Maddox, Los Angeles telephone girl accused of being a bootlegger by Newport Beach police, and held in the county jail for 10 days on a charge of transportation and possession of intoxicating liquor, yesterday was given a 180-day jail sentence on the two charges, and then told that the sentence would be suspended if she left the beach cities.

Her case was called in Judge W. A. Leonard's court, at the beach, yesterday afternoon.

The girl was arrested with two men, friends, both of whom are still in the county jail. Their cases were called at the same time. Harry Davies was fined $200, or 100 days in jail, and Frank Ayers asked for a jury trial and was released on bail last night. His case will be heard September 2.

FIND LITTLE GIRL DIED ACCIDENTALLY

Jeannette Vanderbilt, 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Vanderbilt, Greenville, who died at the Santa Ana Valley hospital Sunday, a few hours after her head was crushed when a wagon wheel passed over it, came to her death by accident, according to a verdict of a coroner's jury today. The inquest was held at the Winbigger Mission funeral home.

Funeral services for the little girl were conducted at 10 a. m., and burial was made in Fairhaven cemetery.

The Vanderbilt girl was playing on a wagon loaded with hay, when she fell underneath the wheels, according to evidence brought out at the inquest.

submitted as a result of Mrs. McPherson's repeated appeals to her former radio operator to "tell the truth."

Keyes announced his intention to issue a formal statement, following his appearance before the grand jury, covering the investigation, particularly in regard to the Carmel evidence.

Of probably equal importance to the Ormiston affidavit were affidavits collected by Mrs. McPherson's attorneys, also intended to prove that Mrs. McPherson was not the woman of the Carmel incident.

EFFORTS TO TRACE ORMISTON FAIL

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—Efforts to trace Kenneth G. Ormiston, radio operator at the Angelus Temple, today were unavailing.

Ormiston, who made an affidavit here saying that he, with a mysterious "Miss X," was at a cottage near Carmel, Calif., shortly after the disappearance of Aimee Semple McPherson, left without word where he was going from Chicago.

The affidavit, which absolutely absolved the evangelist from any connection with the visit to the Carmel cottage, was made in the office of Edward Martin, lawyer.

"Ormiston came into the office last week and made the affidavit before my son," Martin said today. "Immediately after signing the paper, he paid the fee and left. He gave no address and that one document ended our connection with the case."

Conquering Limitations

JOHN MERCEREAU'S stage coach lumbered its creaking way from New York to Philadelphia in a day and a half, in 1771, and was considered so fast that it was called "The Flying Machine." When steam came into use, there were the "Comet," the "Thunderbolt" and similar names, suggesting the attainment of the age-old need—speedy messengers.

Man's effort to overcome the limitations of time and distance finally put electricity to work, and it became his swiftest message bearer.

Half a century ago Bell invented the telephone. It is more than a messenger, for it has been developed to carry man's spoken words for great distances with the swiftness of light. Through its wizardry space is conquered with the speed of thought itself.

Gay Social Side of Regatta Week at Yacht Club

ALTHOUGH the sailing and yachting activities now of paramount importance at Newport Harbor Yacht Club, the social side of life on the shore is not lessened, but is rather intensified for feminine members and guests at the popular clubhouse.

Social activities of the week promise matters of interest for practically every hour of the day for the "Rockingchair fleet" beginning with the popular morning swim.

Saturday night was marked by one of the pleasant weekly dances, rendered more delightful by the presence of so many distinguished visitors. The Chapman orchestra played and will be present at most of the evening dances during the entire Regatta week.

Each afternoon a bevy of feminine members serves tea to all guests, with a cup of especially hot and fragrant beverage for the ardent seamen who participate in each day's races.

Sunday afternoon's hostesses included Mrs. Joseph Beck, wife of the commodore, Mrs. B. H. Cass, wife of the vice commodore, and Mrs. George E. Vibert, wife of the rear commodore, together with Mrs. W. N. Cummings, Mrs. Leonard C. Jones, Mrs. John E. Jardine and Mrs. James M. Webster.

A different group of prominent woman members served yesterday afternoon and yet other groups each successive day this week.

Informal dancing will be a feature of each evening regardless of what other forms of entertainment may be planned. This afternoon, a motor trip to Laguna and its galleries will be featured, with the hostesses to serve tea on the beach. Tonight will be the formal ball at Santa Ana Country club.

The Hawaiian motif will be stressed in Wednesday's events. In the afternoon, Mrs. Albert Soland will entertain at an Hawaiian tea at her beautiful home near the clubhouse, where she will be assisted by the wives of the men who made the famous racing trip to Honolulu on the John Barrymore yacht, the Mariner. Music, decorations and entertainment will all be reminiscent of the Island Paradise.

In the evening an Hawaiian fish barbecue and entertainment will be featured on the island directly across from clubhouse and elaborate plans are being made for the success of the affair.

Brilliant Dance Given By Host Group for Mrs. Ellis Rhodes

LIGHTING in Santa Ana for but a brief, bright moment, her long sweeping journey from Orient to Occident and from coast to coast on the continent, Mrs. Ellis Rhodes (June Hamilton Rhodes) as guest of her mother, Mrs. Edwina Hamilton at her nearby ranch, was complimented last night at a hastily arranged but thoroughly delightful party given by a double quintette of young people at Orange Woman's clubhouse in the adjoining city.

In the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Peek, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Willis, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Visel, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. McCullah, together with Mrs. Rhodes, the honoree, and her mother and sister, Mrs. Hamilton and Mrs. Harry Rhodes of Los Angeles, Ellis Rhodes joining the party later in the evening.

Mrs. Rhodes' sparkling, brilliant personality is undimmed from her year's travel to the far places of the earth as business manager for the Denishawn dancers, and she expressed that same vibrant warmth of friendship that all remembered as one of her principal charms. She was very lovely in a golden gown whose flying panels were edged with orchid ostrich. Her sister, Mrs. Harry Rhodes, wore apple green taffeta whose bouffant skirt had inset lace medallions and was edged with a transparent hem in uneven outline. Mrs. Hamilton wore a little net and lace gown and a superb mandarin coat.

In the hostess group, the dancing frocks worn, sounded various notes of color and style. Mrs. Peek wore a two-toned blue georgette with heavy Italian lace. Mrs. Willis looked like a demure small girl in a French mull and net with medallions of pink roses; Mrs. Visel's choice was a simply fashioned green georgette; Mrs. McCullah's was a lovely two-toned brocade silk with green scarf effect, and Mrs. Taylor's was a little Dresden figured satin taffeta with transparent hem.

Both lounge and ballroom of the clubhouse, were gay with flowers arranged in large ornamental baskets. A three-piece orchestra dispensed excellent music and in the intervals of dancing, the guests gathered in little groups to hear Mrs. Rhodes tell interesting bits of her travels and inquire as to happenings at home during her absence.

Several feature dances were introduced, one amusing one being when the popular "Animal Crackers" was played, and partners were chosen by the matching of the real animal crackers, distributed by the men of the host group.

Mrs. Hamilton and her two daughters, dined at the ranch home last night, the first time that only the three of them had dined together, for fifteen years. Mrs. Hamilton divides her time between the ranch and Los Angeles, and all were returning to the Rhodes home in the city this morning. Mrs. Rhodes will remain until Wednesday, when her duties will call her to New York.

A change in bookings for the Denishawn Dancers, brought them back to the United States several weeks earlier than originally planned and changed their route materially so that they landed on the Pacific coast rather than the Atlantic. Mrs. Rhodes cabling her husband and mother and sister of the change in route so they might anticipate her earlier arrival and brief visit.

Despite the vacation season and consequent absence from the city of countless close friends, there were about seventy-five guests who were happy to greet the traveler and enjoy the evening with her and Mr. Rhodes and the host group.

Miller-LePage Nuptials Are Solemnized at Home of Pastor

BEAUTIFUL sentiment caused Miss Hazel Eliza Miller and Bruce Young LePage to choose Sunday, August 1, as their wedding day, for it was on that day that Miss Miller's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Miller, of 805 East Third street, plighted their true twenty-seven years ago.

The wedding of the young folk was very simple, taking place at the home of the Rev. F. T. Porter, of the First Christian church. The bride was lovely in a white georgette sports dress, with hat and other accessories to match. She carried a beautiful bouquet of pink roses, sweet peas and maidenhair fern.

The young couple were attended by Miss Lee Dilley, matrons and Merle Hall, both of whom are associated with the bride at the First National bank.

Following the service, Mr. and Mrs. LePage left immediately for Catalina Island, where a two weeks' honeymoon will be spent before they take up their residence in their pretty apartment at 421 South Ross street.

The bride is a graduate of the Santa Ana high school, and for some time past has been connected with the First National bank. Returning from Catalina, she will continue in her position there.

Mr. LePage, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas LePage of Proberta, formerly lived in Santa Ana but of late years lived in North Bend, Oregon, where he was connected with the post office. He resigned his position there, however, and accepted one in Santa Ana with the Southern Counties Gas company in order that he and Mrs. LePage may live in Orange county.

Patrons and Matrons Entertain with Dance At S. A. Country Club

ALSO FACES and other favors were only partly the cause of a most enjoyable evening Saturday at the Santa Ana Country club when matrons and patrons of O. E. S. chapters in this district entertained with a dance in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Orlo A. Kelsey of Chicago.

A color motif of pink and green was prevalent throughout the table decorations. Over the table was suspended a huge bell of pink roses from which pink ribbon streamers reached to the dainty rose colored place cards and favor baskets. Lighted candles in gleaming brass candle sticks which are cherished by the hostess as a recent gift sent to her from India.

Mrs. Feighner was assisted in her duties as hostess by Mrs. Caroline Van Nocker.

Out of town guests who enjoyed Mrs. Feighner's hospitality were Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Burleson of Olivet, Michigan, Mr. and Mrs. Harrie Walkinshaw of Pasadena, and Mrs. Carrie Waters of Los Angeles.

Friends of Dr. Cash Are Surprised by News of Wedding

OMING as a complete surprise to his many friends was the marriage of Dr. N. D. Cash of 411 West Fifth street, to Miss Annette Rust, daughter of Mrs. S. L. Rust of San Ysidro, on July 19.

The wedding took place at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Don Dixon of Point Loma, before an improvised altar draped with gorgeous oriental rugs and banked with white roses, ferns and carnations, with the Rev. Mr. Forshaw of University Congregational church, San Diego, officiating. The service was performed by candle light and was witnessed by only a few friends and relatives.

The bride was gown in a beautiful creation of cream lace over georgette and she carried a bridal bouquet of Cecil Brunner roses and maidenhair fern. A little niece of the bride, Idylven Louise Dixon, was the only attendant and very dainty and sweet she was, as a flower girl.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Cash left for Cuyamaca lake where a two weeks' honeymoon is being spent.

Mrs. Cash is a graduate of San Diego State Teachers' college and was a former student at the Kansas State Agricultural college where she met Dr. Cash. She is a member of Komo sorority and Juk club at San Diego State Teachers' college.

Dr. Cash, who is a World war veteran, graduated from Kansas State Agricultural college and has been associated for the past year with Dr. Fred Wright of this city.

Dr. and Mrs. Cash will be home to their many friends after August 5, at 302 South Garnsey street.

Rose Buds and Jasmine Form Pretty Motif For Luncheon

ROSE BUDS and Jasmine which miniature parrots clung to tiny perches were a part of the decorations at the home of Mrs. Lillie Feighner, 1016 West Fourth street, when she entertained at luncheon yesterday in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Orlo A. Kelsey of Chicago.

'My Favorite Flower,' Is Subject of Many Clever Essays

Writing in a recent issue of McCall's magazine, Dorothy Giles, of the Garden Club of America, said: "There is little doubt that the most popular flower in America today is the dahlia. From coast to coast, its dominion is unchallenged."

Other persons have written about the most popular flower. Some have claimed that it is one flower and some another. As a result, a symposium has been made from a number of short essays by Santa Ana women who have been asked to use as their subject, "My Favorite Flower."

It is said that nearly all persons admire flowers, but the majority have not sufficient industry or interest to produce them. Flower culture seemed to reach its height in many old-fashioned country towns, where people had no very exciting amusements and where the garden occupied the time pleasantly.

Perhaps Santa Ana is an old-fashioned country town, but still more likely the answer to the query is: "From where come all the flowers?" would be that, in Santa Ana, townspeople express their love for flowers more than in places where there is less room to develop them.

As for caring for one particular flower, the symposium has shown that Santa Ana women have no one favorite, the majority loves all flowers and expresses this love in the short themes, which will appear on the social page of the Register from day to day.

Among those asked to tell of their favorite flower was Mrs. Arthur Lyon of 2055 North Broadway. Her answer to the query is as follows:

My favorite flower?
I have none. Flowers are like friends. Each has its own individuality and carries its own message and is loved in a different way.

Mrs. Arthur H. Lyon.

POE'S STORIES:

The Pit and the Pendulum

Sketches by Redner
Synopsis by Braucher

Transfixed with horror, the prisoner watched the hissing pendulum above him. Slowly, just perceptibly, as it swung, it moved ever nearer to the breast of its victim. Long hours, days, might have passed while the man counted the rushing oscillations of the glinting steel. Despair seized him.

The pendulum moved down until he could feel its breath. Suddenly he fell calm and lay fascinated, watching the pendulum as a child a toy.

Then a new hope came to him, the "hope that triumphs on the rack." An idea of salvation thrilled him with a surge of joy.

The pendulum, as it came closer, would sever the cords with which he was bound! With even one cord of the surcingle which bound him severed, he could free himself and roll out of harm's way. But the hope died as he saw that he was bound everywhere but across his chest, in the path of the deadly crescent. (Continued.)

BEAUTY CHATS

ANSWERED LETTERS

Mrs. H. M.—Most women prefer a finer grade of powder for the face than a talcum, using the latter for all general purposes. Pure rice powder may agree with your skin better than the powders you have been trying. Possibly the perfumes and not the powders have been causing the irritation.

Maryetta—Try rolling as an exercise for reducing the abdomen. To do this: lie flat on the floor with arms extended above the head; clasp hands together and tense the muscles of the arms, then roll to the right then to left ten or more times. Repeat this procedure several times a day for as long as necessary.

F. N. M.—A daily violet ray treatment would be too stimulating to the scalp, resulting in some abnormal condition after a time. Possibly this is the reason why your hair is breaking off and getting so dry. Use the padded flexible curlers instead of heated irons until your hair has recovered.

L. M. J.—Several drops of ammonia to a large basin of water will soften hard water sufficiently for a shampoo. Many people who live in districts where water is hard, catch rain water enough for bathing the face and shampooing.

Miss M. G. K.—The sulphur in the pilocarpine tonic does not dissolve, and when the tonic is shaken before using and applied to the scalp, the small amount that is distributed over the scalp acts as a purifier, a very necessary thing in cases of dandruff.

Mrs. J. A. T.—You will have to consult the doctor about the treatment for varicose veins.

J. J.—Lines under your eyes at 15 merely show that you need to be built up. It takes very little at this age to correct these: a short vacation, a change of diet, some new pleasures to refresh the mind, and lines or other physical defects vanish in a few days.

Ola.—It is much easier for you to bring your weight down to normal, when your bust would not be so large, than to try to reduce the bust alone. At 20 years of age with a height of five feet three inches you are at least 15 pounds overweight at 135.

Once Upon a Time
A WOMAN'S DRESS WAS AS FOOLISH AS MAN'S

BY TOM SIMS

One of the most amusing sights on an August day is a man who winks his collar laughing at women's clothes.

His chuckle is merely an echo from "once upon a time" when women were so foolish they didn't have more sense than men.

The above photograph of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, 2nd, is reminiscent of this dark past. The charming little frock was a summer dress—one to be worn about on August afternoons.

You know it was stylish because Mrs. Vanderbilt is a member of New York's famous "400" and at that time was a very fashionable young matron.

Summer weather, however, simply didn't agree with such a billowy outfit. And finding it impossible to change the weather, women slowly began trimming off portions of their costumes.

Today they have the ideal arrangement—a few pieces of light, filmy stuff—cool and refreshing as a glass of lemonade.

The men are the backward creatures. They have spent too much time laughing at the change in women's summer clothing to take much notice of their own.

A man will chuckle at the way his wife dresses. Yet men have been wearing neckties thousands of years without any reasonable excuse.

A THOUGHT

They that trust in their wealth, and boast themselves in the multitude of their riches; none of them can by any means redeem his brother, nor give to God a ransom for him.—Ps. 49: 6, 7.

When the desire of wealth is taking hold of the heart, let us look around and see how it operates upon those whose industry or fortune has obtained it. When we find them oppressed with their own abundance, luxurious without pleasure, idle without ease, and despaired and hated by the rest of mankind, we shall soon be convinced that if the real wants of our condition are satisfied, there remains little to be desired with eagerness.—Dr. Johnson.

SEEING THE REDWOODS WITH TWO PAIRS OF EYES

Redwoods

BY ARTHUR N. PACK
President, The American Nature Association

There are two pairs of eyes through which the redwoods may be seen. One may look through the protective eyes of poetry and beauty, or through the eyes of commerce and material prosperity. Both viewpoints are essential.

The glorious trees lining the highways of California are a monument equaled nowhere. With this in mind, the Save the Redwoods League is working.

Through purchase and gift it has been possible already to preserve more than 6000 acres of redwoods, deeding them over to the state to be held not only for its people, but for the people of the world.

In preserving these groves a sufficiently sizable stand has to be acquired to prevent blowdowns, as the tree is not deep-rooted enough to stand unprotected. Several thousand more acres will be acquired by the league.

The other pair of eyes regards the redwoods from the commercial point of view. The redwood is one of California's commercial resources. The lumber companies owning and cutting the redwoods recognize the need of saving trees.

A lumbering operation in such timber must be clean, otherwise the trees could not be gotten out. Being clean, it must leave a desolation behind it temporarily. The redwood tree takes a partial care of reforestation itself. From the main root it sends up root sprouts or suckers. These grow into fair timber.

To supplement these trees naturally left, two redwood nurseries have been established, now including about 1,300,000 trees. These will be used to fill out spaces among the root sprouts and for planting on cutover lands.

In this way it is believed that the fast growing redwood will produce a timber crop in 50 years that will have several times more board feet per acre than eastern second-growth stands.

Send a stamped addressed envelope and questions of fact having to do with Nature will be answered by the consulting staff of Nature Magazine of Washington through arrangements made by this paper.

PLEA FOR THE DAY

Let me go through this day
Brave, true and tender;
Let me win, down the way,
Something of splendor.

Let me not work in hate,
Greedy for treasure;
Lord, keep my pathway straight,
Square to the measure.

Surely one day I can Stand to my labor;
Fair to my fellowman,
Fair to my neighbor.

Is it too much to ask
One day of beauty?
Strength for an honest task,
Courage for duty?

One day of friendly thought
One day of cleanness,
One day lived through with naught
Checked with meanness?

Grant me a day serene,
Well-lived and splendid;
Clean at the dawn, and clean Clean when it is ended.

NEWS from ORANGE COUNTY

20 DERRICKS BUT NEW AREA AT H. B.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Aug. 3.—Oil derricks in the section of this city recently opened for oil drilling had, early today, mounted to 20 in number and promised before evening to total 25. Three permits were issued to the California Petroleum corporation and one to E. J. Milley. The California Petroleum corporation, the Standard Oil company and the Wilshire Oil company each have four derricks in the new area. The Ambassador Petroleum company is controlled by the Wilshire company, it is understood.

Five permits for oil derricks were expected to be granted today. These permits, according to reports, will be taken out by the Superior Oil company and the California Petroleum company.

The three derricks for which permits were issued yesterday will be located in blocks between Nineteenth and Twentieth streets. The California Petroleum company will have wells on Twentieth street between Olive and Orange avenues, and on Nineteenth street between Ocean and Walnut avenues.

Companies now operating in the new district and the number of wells are, Standard, four; California Petroleum, four; Superior, two; Ambassador, two; Wilshire, two; Milley, two; Kelson, Getty, Hogan and Lytle and Julian companies, one each.

DEEP WELL FLOWS 2500 BARRELS OIL

BREA, Aug. 3.—Deep drilling in this district was given another boost Sunday morning, when the General Petroleum corporation brought in its Stearn No. 6 the well flowing at the rate of 2800 barrels per day of clean oil of 24 gravity. The well was drilled to a depth of 4590 feet and excitement reigned for a time on the lease when the news of the fine production came out. The well has now settled down to a steady flow of 2000 barrels each 20 hours. Officials and workmen who have watched the well expect this flow to be slightly increased and state that the well may safely be termed a 2500-barrel well.

Children To Be Given Donkey Rides

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Aug. 3.—Children will be provided with free donkey rides on the beach.

City trustees last night decided in favor of allowing donkeys on the beach. Considerable discussion arose over the question. Old city ordinances were inspected. The ordinance in effect provides that the donkeys must be watched at all times.

Local merchants purchased the animals and have placed them on the beach. Free rides will be given to all children who come to the beach to play.

COUNTY FLYERS VISIT IN MEXICO

LAGUNA BEACH, Aug. 3.—Using a permit which required a month to get, a party of well known aviators journeyed to Mexico Sunday, traveling 165 miles inland.

In the flying party, which was composed of four planes, were Joe Skidmore, of Laguna Beach, flying his own ship, Eddie Martin, of Santa Ana, in his own plane; Lieut. W. D. Tomlinson, combat instructor at North Island, and Lieut. Buck Lee, another instructor, in Lieut. Tomlinson's plane, and Earle Irving, of Santa Barbara, with Virgil Westbrook, a flyer and business man of Santa Barbara, in Irving's plane.

The four planes were checked in at the border by both the Mexican and American government officials and the flyers report every courtesy extended to them. Their trip was to have taken them to Mexico City, but the Mexican officials advised against such a course in view of the religious riots prevailing there as a result of the closing of the churches.

Their trip was to have taken them to Mexico City, but the Mexican officials advised against such a course in view of the religious riots prevailing there as a result of the closing of the churches.

Mr. Skidmore said that many of the people had never seen a plane before and that their interest was intense. Mr. Skidmore also spoke of the fact that Eddie Martin is to have the transportation line between the Shoreacres club and this country. It is expected to be in operation in about a year.

The flyers were received, on landing at the club by F. Villa Senon, Mexican official, F. D. Rose, official and a brother of the painter, Guy Rosa.

Beach Trustee Given Lamp As Wedding Present

NEWPORT BEACH, Aug. 3.—When Dr. Conrad Richter, president of the board of trustees, called all city officials with the exception of Trustee L. S. Wilkinson, from the council room last night, spectators suspected something peculiar.

Just at that moment, the returning officials carried a floor lamp. This was presented to Wilkinson by Clyde Bishop, city attorney, on behalf of the board, as a wedding present.

Wilkinson was married recently.

WATER CHIEF IS OUSTED BY BEACH BOARD

NEWPORT BEACH, Aug. 3.—Removal of S. A. Daley water superintendent and sewer superintendent from office, effective August 23, following his two weeks' vacation, and the installation of Stewart A. Cundiff in the positions, was effected last night at the monthly meeting of the board of trustees.

The reason given for the change was the number of complaints declared to have been made to the trustees concerning the work performed by Daley.

Daley refused to accept an opportunity to resign because he felt he had no reason for wanting to resign, he stated.

That the action of the board came as a "bolt from the blue" was the statement of Daley. He said further that in his estimate of the cost of the operation of his offices for the fiscal year, he had included a raise in salary for himself.

FINANCES OF NEWPORT IN GOOD CONDITION, REPORT OF COMMITTEE INDICATES

NEWPORT BEACH, Aug. 3.—That the city of Newport Beach is living well within its income was indicated last night at the board of trustees meeting, when a report from the finance committee showed a surplus of $32,721 above the amount demanded in the budget for the year.

The taxes taken in by the city total $98,000. The budget calls for $65,279.

Because some question had arisen as to the desirability of expending $800 for a combination ambulance and police patrol the committee recommended that the vehicle be purchased.

According to a report from City Recorder W. A. Leonard, 102 law violators appeared before him during the month of July. Fines collected totaled $787. Twenty-two who were given traffic slips failed to appear in court.

The library is doing a flourishing business. The report for July is very creditable. With 5000 books in the library, the circulation for July reached 15,040 volumes. The sum of $1395 was paid out as upkeep.

A 45-day extension was allowed the contracting firm of Kavanaugh and Twoby to complete the work on Central avenue.

Permission was granted to A. R. Russell to close the bait stand on the pier during the week days from October 1 to June 1. The concession will be open Sundays and holidays.

The harbor master, Tom Jay, will be asked to warn the hydroplane operator on Newport bay that low flying and daredevil stunts will not be tolerated.

An allowance of $38.38 was ordered returned to Mrs. Mary P. Bids. The sum is said to have been collected on an erroneous assessment.

A new survey of the city of Newport Beach was ordered. City Engineer Paul E. Kressly will confer with the board of fire underwriters to obtain the service.

Sale of some antiquated pumping equipment was placed in the hands of the city engineer. The equipment will be advertised for the purchase of a car to be used by the water superintendent in his work.

An auditing company will be employed to check the audit made by the city auditor, it was decided.

No change was made in the ordinance requiring a license for every type of business. A request had been received to the effect that a pool room license be considered as covering a soft drink and tobacco stand conducted in the establishment.

Banners advertising the Los Angeles county fair will be suspended from the streets of Newport Beach September 1, according to action taken by the board, in response to a request that they be allowed.

Bus licenses within the city were fixed at $26 for the first month and $10 for each additional month.

The city engineer was ordered to investigate the request of residents in the vicinity of the Masonic Homes camp on Balboa Island that a seawall be constructed to protect the property from storms and high tides.

H. W. Batterman, proprietor of the Orange Post Publishing company, submitted the low bid on the printing, but a question as to whether the figure was submitted on the understanding that additional work needed by the city from time to time would be given the low bidder on the contract or whether the bid was just for work itemized, caused the holdover.

Batterman bid $470.20. Wilbur Lentz bid $471.35 and C. W. Moore bid $644.30. Possibility that all bids would be dropped and other arrangements made was seen by those familiar with the situation.

The library budget, set at $10,885, probably will be voted in its entirety.

Zarate finally admitted that he and his friend, whose ticket he was also presenting, had thought the fines would not be more than $5 each. He paid $5 on his fine. Then he paid $5 more, which completed his fine.

Panama and Suez Canals In Close Race for World Leadership

Remarkable Competition Between American and British Ditches Brings American Victory Near

By JUDSON C. WELLIVER

ALTHOUGH attracting well-nigh no attention in this country, a curious and unprecedented Anglo-American competition which has been going on for several years, seems likely to reach its climax in 1926.

It is competition between the Panama and Suez Canals, for leadership in ocean tonnage transited on the great maritime trade routes. It is too early now for more than a guess which Canal will win, but indications point to a victory for the American route.

If the event justifies this expectation, it will pretty definitely establish the primacy of Panama. In doing so it will mark an achievement which a few years ago would have been scouted as utterly impossible; and it will give impressive testimony to the astonishing increase of American importance in ocean trade and international commerce.

Old World vs. New

In a fashion, it is competition between old World and New World. Whether primacy shall pass during 1926 to Panama or not, it is now quite apparent that Panama is destined to be first, and probably permanently first, of the two Canals. Attainment of that rank will have far more significance than is carried on the face of mere tonnage figures. To people concerned with the deeper significations, it will be a new evidence that industrial leadership is passing from Europe to North America.

It is now nearly four years since the neck-and-neck race between the two Canals became so close that the ultimate leadership of Panama was foreshadowed. In 1922 Suez passed 4,345 vessels, Panama only 2,997. Suez transited 21,361,000 tons of cargo, Panama only 13,710,000 tons. Despite the long lead for Suez, this was a magnificent showing for the American route, considering that Suez was opened in 1869, and Panama only in 1914.

Yet in the very next year, 1923, the race was on, and Panama actually jumped into leadership. It transited 5,037 vessels against 4,621 for Suez; its cargo tonnage was 25,160,000, against 22,777,000 for Suez.

In 1924 Suez did better. It handled slightly more vessels than did Panama, but Panama led by an eyelash in cargo tonnage, having 26,994,710 tons against 26,529,000 for Suez.

A Neck-and-Neck Race

Final figures on the competition in 1925 are not yet at hand. Panama suffered a drop of over 3,000,000 tons, compared to 1924, while it is believed final figures will indicate that Suez showed a small gain. The two routes thus entered 1926 running very close, and reports for the early months of the year indicate that Panama is likely to recoup its losses and resume the lead. Whether or not this shall be accomplished in 1926, it is apparent that in the normal course the American route will shortly establish a pretty definite leadership. The reader who in this good year 1926 finds himself interested in this epic of intensely modern commercial competition, will be still more intrigued if he will familiarize himself somewhat with its background in history. The conception of a Panama Canal is as old as the discovery of the Isthmus by Balboa four centuries ago. But even at that, the Panama project is, by comparison with Suez, the child of strictly modern times. For the first Suez Canal was actually built at least 3,000 years before Cortes, from his "Peak in Darien," surveyed the Pacific. A Canal connecting the Red Sea with the Mediterranean, by way of the Nile, was actually in operation as early as B. C. 1380; how long before that date it had been constructed, is mere conjecture. Before the Christian era began the ditch had been built, destroyed, rebuilt, silted up and built up again, time after time. When Alexander the Great conquered Egypt the Canal was one of the oldest and most famous of engineering works; it had been there more than a thousand years!

With the decadence of Egypt the ancient Canal was abandoned and buried under desert sand. But it was so well preserved that de Lesseps, the French engineer who constructed the modern Suez Canal, found the older ditch. He discovered that it had been so well engineered that he was actually able to follow and be directed by its route, in building the fresh water Canal that parallels the sea route of Suez.

Modern Suez Canal a Napoleonic Project

The modern idea of a Canal at Suez seems to have originated with Napoleon. When in Egypt in 1798 he went so far as to have surveys made for it. Thus it came about that French vision and engineering genius were so intimately associated with both Suez and Panama. M. de Lesseps financed and constructed the modern Suez, which was opened in 1869, with a great international celebration. The Empress Eugenie of France was a passenger on the first vessel through it. Later, de Lesseps organized the French Panama Canal Company which sunk an enormous investment in futile efforts to dig the big ditch. Finally, Roosevelt took over the works of the old French Panama Company.

Between 1904 and 1915 the present Canal was constructed. It cost about $400,000,000, whereas Suez cost about one-fourth that sum. But Suez is a simple, sea-level ditch across a sandy plain; while Panama is a lock canal, the greater part of its length lying 85 feet above sea level, so that most of the distance from ocean to ocean is through an artificial fresh-water lake.

When Roosevelt started building at Panama, neither he nor any other prophet of optimism would have dared suggest that within its first decade the Canal would earn a profit. Its chief justification concerned the national defense, and the establishment of competition with the transcontinental railroads. Even when the Canal was approaching completion, so well informed an authority as the late Admiral Robley D. Evans, set forth elaborate reasons for belief that not for many years if ever would the Canal pay. Yet today it earns interest on its cost, covers all operating charges, and turns back a considerable annual surplus to the Federal Treasury.

World War Served to Turn Business to Panama

At the same time, the stimulation of North American industry because of the war created new traffic which sought Panama. Lumber from the North Pacific, wheat from the far Northwest and California, found at the Isthmus the quick and cheap route to both Europe and the eastern United States. The tonnages were vastly larger than they would have been in time of peace.

It was generally assumed that when the war ended, a good share of this traffic would desert Panama. But again the prophets were confounded. In the last year, Panama passed 2,069 vessels, with 7,532,000 cargo tons. There was a small loss in 1919; then the business entered its real era of expansion, and the race has been on ever since. For 1925 Suez handled 26,578,000 tons of cargo; Panama handled only 23,958,000 tons.

1926 Will See Panama Lead

The year 1926 will pretty certainly see another Panama increase, while Suez is expected to confront a loss.

Although both Canals are open on equal terms to shipping of all nations, it is interesting that British vessels constitute the majority of those using Suez (55.8%), while American vessels are 54.5% of those using Panama. Traffic statistics for the two Canals are not precisely comparable. Naval vessels are counted in the Suez statistics, but not in those of Panama; while at Panama other vessels are counted from 20 tons upward, but at Suez vessels under 200 tons are omitted from the statistics.

For 1924, ships of 21 nations used the Suez route, while 24 nations were represented in the maritime caravan at Panama. The World War was not the only unexpected factor in bringing Panama so quickly to equality with Suez, nor the most important. The enormous increase in Panama traffic in 1923 was represented almost entirely by petroleum and its products, moving from California to the east coast and Europe. In the year ended June 30, 1924, tolls aggregating $24,290,000 were collected, of which $9,071,000 was from tankers carrying petroleum. An even more striking statement of the matter is that for this same year exactly 50% of all tonnage through the Canal was between the two ocean fronts of the United States; that is, 13,500,000 tons; and of this, considerably over 9,000,000 tons, or more than two-thirds was petroleum. It was of course chiefly from California, en route to eastern refineries. In the succeeding year this petroleum movement fell off heavily; but for 1926 it is again increasing and the increase is likely to continue for many years. But for the petroleum traffic, the Canal would have shown a deficit in every year of its operation; whereas it is now comfortably on the right side of the ledger and likely to remain there.

The enormous petroleum business has been in other ways advantageous to Panama. A constantly increasing proportion of maritime shipping nowadays uses oil fuel. Oil-burning ships seek routes on which they can most cheaply buy oil; and because California oil can be put so cheaply into the bunkers of vessels passing through the Panama ditch, there is a substantial inducement to prefer this route. This will increasingly favor Panama and militate against Suez, as the number of oil burners increases. Moreover, Panama's advantage will still further increase as the enormous oil resources of Venezuela, Colombia, and other South American countries are developed. Cheap oil will make Panama the key to the preferred trade routes of the world.

Great Service of Panama to America and the World

If cheap petroleum has thus served Panama so well, Panama in turn has equally served the American motorist, who consumes most of the world's petroleum products. For Panama has brought Pacific Coast petroleum to the eastern market at costs which, but for the Canal, would be vastly greater. Thus the Canal has given the United States the cheapest petroleum products in the world, and helped build the automobile industry and our modern highway system.

This mutually helpful relationship between the Canal and the petroleum users is the more impressive when one realizes that it was not even remotely anticipated at the time President Roosevelt started building the Canal. So late, indeed, as 1910, when Admiral Evans wrote his articles about the Canal and decided that it could not be profitable for several decades at least, he based all his calculations on the probable cost of coal for bunkering ships. He did not dream that merchant marines were on the verge of the revolutionary change from coal to oil. So he figured that, as there is practically no bunker coal in the countries bordering on the Pacific, that ocean could not compete, by way of Panama, for a greatly increased share of shipping. The oil development overturned the prophecies of Admiral Evans, and of all others who had foreseen that fuel problems would make Panama unprofitable. Oil has made Panama a profitable instead of a heavily losing investment for the American people.

To Revolutionize Grow-

OVER PRESENT TYPEHarry Shipkey, Fullerton, Says New Fruit Includes
All Features Long Sought

If the lemon-orange developed by Harry Shipkey proves successful, citrus farming over Southern California may be revolutionized. The fruit is 50-50, half lemon, half orange.

Shipkey today exhibited some of the new fruit from the tree with which he has been experimenting at his ranch west of Anaheim. Southern California's immense orchards of oranges and lemons may become of little value and be replaced by trees growing the new fruit, it is held.

All the features sought by horticulturists for the ideal citrus fruit are combined in the lemon-orange, Shipkey claims. The Fullerton citrus farmer, well known because of the fame of his boys as football stars in college, has been five years cultivating the new fruit. He achieved the product by budding an orange and a lemon together.

Has Many Advantages

This is what Shipkey claims for it: The lemon-orange, like the lemon, will grow the year around and is not limited to seasons. The hardness of the orange is possessed and it will hang on the limbs of the trees, not dropping to the ground as do the lemons.

The pulp resembles an orange in taste.

Its shipping qualities surpass the orange or lemon. Several bunches of the fruit were on display at the First National bank of Santa Ana recently, and they were inspected by many persons.

To Plant Ten Acres

Shipkey intends to plant 10 acres to lemon-oranges. Buds from the tree on which he has propagated the new kind of citrus fruit are to be cut and used.

The tree that has been used for the experiments is on Shipkey's ranch, located on Magnolia street, north of the intersection with the Lincoln highway.

Buds from the tree are being cut for nurseries of the county, who, with the citrus farmers, are watching with interest the developments. Shipkey says that the day is not far distant when all orchards planted to citrus fruit will be of lemon-oranges.

Looks Like Long Oranges

In appearance, the lemon-orange has the color of the orange with the elongated shape of the lemon. The tree has leaves of both the orange and lemon shape. Bunches of fruit grow on the trees. Because of its profuse growth and due to the fact that it grows 'the year around, the crossed fruit tree will produce much more than either the orange or the lemon, it is said.

SAN JOAQUIN MIDDLE FORK WILL BE FISHED OUT EARLY IN AUGUST, IS PREDICTION

(NOTE: This is the concluding article written by Mr. Stephenson concerning his experiences on his fishing trip to the Mammoth lakes. The first article appeared yesterday.)

By T. E. STEPHENSON

We heard a good deal about fishing in the San Joaquin while we were there. Dr. Bulpitt had advised that the surest way to catch 'em is to get into hip boots and wade to spots not ordinarily reached by other fishermen. He got a recent limit that way. I saw one man trying that method. Morton had used boots, and while he had a fair measure of success he said that he believed it impossible to wade in the stream without frightening the trout a lot.

The water in the San Joaquin river is decreasing rapidly, and the stream of fishermen is increasing. Everywhere we heard that reservations indicated that August would be double July in number of visitors.

When the water was up, the stream could be approached only here and there. Masses of aspen made a wall along the stream. Now, with the water down, fishermen can walk dry shod for long stretches beside the water.

It's my guess—and you can discount it if you wish, knowing that I'm a rank amateur in matters concerning fish—that long before August is finished the middle fork of the San Joaquin will have been completely fished out as they tell me that Hot creek and Convict creek have been fished out. To one who has known fishing as it used to be, it's fished almost to a finish now.

But we had to leave the San Joaquin. We had walked in, down the soft pumice trail. We rode out. We had decided that walking out would not be a "hike" but would be a "struggle," and we had so few days vacation that we decided that the effect of the altitude in a fight for footing such as that would call for a day off for rest, and we had no time to devote to rest.

Don't Want the Park We heard C. A. Roberts, the packer, express his views concerning the proposal to take the Devil's Postpile country into the Yosemite National park. Col. Greeley of the Forest department and Mather of the parks have just finished a trip of inspection.

"We have protested against any such move, for we prefer the Forest Service," said Roberts. "The people on this side want to be left free from all those high prices the government allows to be charged in Yosemite. It's robbery over there. Think of it, $5 and $7.50 a day for a horse. We charge only $2.50."

By the way, while I think of it, gasoline is 30 cents at Mammoth, 27 cents at Bishop. Roberts said that for the present a decision had been made against building a road into the San Joaquin. If so, that delays another year the farewell to the river trout.

SEEK ATHLETES AS MEMBERS OF GUARD COMPANY

Santa Ana Military Unit to Leave Soon for California
Encampment, Del Monte

Are you an athlete?
If so, Company L, 160th Infantry, Santa Ana's unit in the California National Guard, wants you as a member.

A campaign was launched today by Captain Harry Prichard and his lieutenants, to recruit the Santa Ana company up to full peace-time strength before August 14, when the company joins the regiment for the annual summer encampment at Del Monte.

And when new men are taken, Captain Prichard wants them to be athletes.

Athletes make the best soldiers, in his opinion, and then he wants Santa Ana soldiers to make a name for their city, not only for being well trained soldiers, but in athletics. There is to be a field meet one day during the encampment and he anticipates entering a number of local boys in the event.

Final preparations for leaving for Del Monte will be made this week by the company, Captain Prichard said. The unit drilled last night and will receive the remainder of its equipment this week. The company will be in the best of trim for the camp, Captain Prichard asserted.

Los Angeles has all the units of the 160th Infantry with the exception of Company L, Santa Ana's company will leave here early on the morning of August 14 for Los Angeles to join the regiment.

LIBRARY SHOWS
FAMOUS BOOKS

Tiny Tim, as presented by Dickens in "Christmas Carol," has always been of particular interest to children who have never failed to sympathize with him in his inability to run and play, as did other children. Always there has been an invisible bond between him and the children who have loved him through reading of his activities, but to the children who frequent the junior department of the city library has come an added bond for there they see him in his bright little jacket with his heavy cane as he really must have looked when he lived so many years ago.

Besides Tiny Tim there are other loved characters of Dickens to be found on the feature table where they surround a huge Dickens book. There is Nicholas Nickleby, the Irish phenomenon, there is Sidney Carton, hero of "Tale of Two Cities," who gained everlasting fame when he said, "It is a far better thing that I do than I have ever done," as he marched to the guillotine during the French revolution.

On the table, Oliver Twist is found with his constant plea of "Please, Sir, I want some more," and to carry out his desire, he extends an empty bowl. Near him is Uriah Heap, just stepped out of "David Copperfield," and he looks as anyone who has read the story would expect him to look. Other characters to be seen are Sarah Gamp, Mr. Pecksniff, Florence Dumbley, Captain Cuttle and Sam Weller.

This display was loaned to the Santa Ana library by the Anaheim library, for which it was made by high school students of that city.

Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Crawford
Observe 50th Wedding Anniversary

An ability to give and take, hard work, and clean living are the necessary requirements to spend 50 years of happy married life, according to Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Crawford, Tustin pioneers, who Sunday celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. Mr. Crawford is 73 years old and Mrs. Crawford is 70.

"Fifty years ago, we thought 70 was getting pretty old, but it seems but a few years now," Crawford said. He asserted that 50 years ago he had married the prettiest girl in Danville, Ia., and Mrs. Crawford showed that she was susceptible to flattery after 50 years, by blushing. Friends and relatives, including six sons and daughters, and numerous grandchildren, gathered at the Crawford home Sunday to wish the couple happiness.

Mr. and Mrs. Crawford came to Tustin 22 years ago from Iowa. They were married in the Danville Congregational church, in 1876, and spent 27 years of their married life in Iowa.

Hearing of the wonders of California, they decided to leave Iowa, and in 1903 they packed their possessions and came to Tustin.

"We found that the stories of the wonders were not exaggerated," Crawford declared.

The country so impressed Mr. and Mrs. Crawford that they soon prevailed on their children to remove to California, and also brought two brothers of Mr. Crawford to this state. All the children now reside in Orange county. They are Mrs. H. C. Wiley, of Santa Ana; Mrs. Edward Johnson, of Orange; Elmer L. Crawford, Dale F. Crawford, William D. Crawford and Ernest W. Crawford, of Tustin.

KITTY IS LOST
AT AUTO PARK
BUT IS FOUND

Many stories have been told about the young boy's love for his dog, but this is one about a young woman's love for her cat.

Accompanied by relatives, Miss Julia E. Davenport, 2029 South Oak street, was motoring from Hood River, Ore., to spend the summer in Santa Ana. Included in the traveling party was "Smookey Miller," a silver gray Persian cat, the pet and companion of the family. "Smookey" was a birthday gift to Miss Davenport from her mother.

"Smookey Miller" is not a big cat. But eight months old, he might be classified as a kitten. He is an aristocrat, none of that starving kitten stuff for him. He comes from a pedigree stock, his father having graced a number of national feline exhibits.

On their way down, Miss Davenport and relatives stopped over for a few days at Willows, Calif., securing accommodations at the auto park. "Smookey Miller's" long silky hair, musical mew and engaging manners made him a pet of the camp.

When they were ready to break camp and continue the journey southward, there was no "Smookey" to greet them. He had simply disappeared. Efforts to locate him were of no avail and it looked very much as if he had been the victim of a carefully planned kidnapping plot. Miss Davenport could not eat for worrying over her pet.

Failing to find any trace of the missing pet, Miss Davenport left word with the camp superintendent to be notified in event the cat should turn up. A few days ago, she received a telegram from Willows that her pet had been picked up by children and was in a starving and exhausted condition. She immediately wired back to ship "Smookey" down by express. C. O. D.

When "Smookey" arrived at the express office, boxed in an empty ketchup case, his mistress was there to meet him. Long before he was out of the box he recognized the voice of his owner. In a language only understood by those who love animals, "Smookey" told his mistress how glad he was to be back, though he failed to give a satisfactory explanation of his mysterious absence.

SURVEY SHOWS

Merchants Declare Young Women More Dependable Employees Than Men

CONDUCT CLASSES IN SALESMANSHIP

Many Take Jobs Because Of Necessity and Others
Simply to Buy Glad Rags

Santa Ana working girls are honest, they are competent, and they are more dependable than the men. Only one Santa Ana merchant said that they were not as dependable, or honest, or capable as men, so this is another case in which it may be said that the majority rules. All of the stores are striving to aid their employees in every way, and to make the work more enjoyable for them, it is declared, for they realize that, in order to get the best service, they must give the best co-operation.

Some of the stores and offices have classes in which they teach salesmanship, and subjects relating to their line of business. Others take their employees on a short probation, and if at the end of the probation period they do not show ability to grasp the work, as the firm thinks they should, they are released. After six months, an employee should be competent, it is asserted. During that time, they are given every aid of which the office is capable, for it is to the advantage of any firm to not be required to change its employees constantly. One large store in Santa Ana gives a bonus after three months. All of offices, stores and factories, executives of which were interviewed, carry insurance on their workers.

Have Pleasant Disposition More of the working girls have good dispositions, are honest and happy. They get to their jobs on time, and leave on time, but not one in 10 will refuse to do extra work if called upon. Today, the public demands courtesy above everything else in working people, with whom it comes in contact. Indifference, discourtesy and rudeness are times when the general rule in many stores. Today, a girl is discharged quicker for impoliteness than for dishonesty. The manager of one large store in Santa Ana said he has not always dismissed a girl caught stealing. When the store is certain that a girl is dishonest, she is watched, and an effort is made to determine why she is dishonest. If it is from absolute necessity, the girl is aided and given another chance. How many stores could have said they did such things a few years ago?

Next to courtesy, comes interest in the work. No girl can put the best of her ability into work that she does not like. The better she likes it, the better she will do the work. Often girls are given a choice of work in the department they prefer at the time being, their names are placed on file, and when an opening comes in the other department, they are given the place.

Co-operation Spirit Prevails While firms are doing all they can for the girls they employ, the majority of cases the girls are doing everything possible to aid their employers. It is far from easy to be courteous and polite eight hours a day, especially to customers who seemingly never heard of such thing. But, while the stores and offices are improving, so is the public. Not many persons find fault

Miss Leona Wade Tells How Cuticura Healed Pimples

"My face, neck, hands and arms were affected with little red pimples that were very hard. After a while they would break and scale over. They itched and burned and were so annoying that I could scarcely do my work. They were worse when I got warm, and when I scratched it caused eruptions. My hands became cracked and sore. I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment to cleanse and purify. Cuticura Ointment to soothe and heal and Cuticura Talcum to powder and refresh. My skin is now clear and my face is as smooth as a baby's. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I purchased some. They afforded relief in two or three days, and in about two weeks I was healed." (Signed) Miss Leona Wade, R. J. SAN JOAQUIN ABOUT FISHED OUT, REPORT

A day. What's more you've got to register for it a day in advance or you won't get a boat.

Earlier in the season there was good fishing there. I have the word of quite a number to that effect. And hanging in a screened cooler near the tavern where all may see are always 15 or 20 handsome trout. Our San Joaquin catch would have looked like tadpoles alongside some of these specimens brought ashore through luck and skill.

Everything in the angler's category is being used. Trolling is the favorite method just now. There's a great tangled piece of tinware dangled up with red beads that they call a Davis spinner that is the outstanding factor in trolling.

As a novice at fishing, this contraption took my eye. I saw a man grab a pair of oars and start down the hill to the landing. In one hand he carried the oars, in the other a long dangling array of hardware that looked like the spangles from a Chinese New Year's parade. At the end of this three foot monstrosity is a hook baited with a worm or with salmon eggs. One man told me he put on a pickled smelt, and a tremendous fish seized it and took the smelt, hook and wonderful piece of tinware along with it.

Insult to Intelligence

You might wonder what chance a poor unsuspecting trout has when they come after him with machinery like that!

That's what struck me. I always credited the trout with being the wildest of the finny tribe. But if he falls for a thing like that dragged from a boat he deserves to be fried.

You don't hear much about flies around this lake. The thing to do is to catch a fish. If flies won't do it, try salmon eggs; try worms. Worms are on sale. The price is two-bits a dozen. Yes, that includes some wet dirt and a paper sack. The price is two-bits but that doesn't mean by a long shot that you'll get two bites.

"I've been out two days now," said one persistent fisherman to me, "and I haven't landed a thing. But I've got another box of night. I sure want to land one of those big fellows. I'm going to float around this time and drop my line down about 150 feet, and grab a young whale."

Mebbe so, old man, mebbe so! June lake, however, does give up a small quota every day. A man camped near us fished out the rocks and brought in a couple. Another man on some other rocks threw out a sinker with worms on the hooks, and hauled in three, and was the happiest man in the Sierra Nevada mountains.

A Real Old Sport

There are half a dozen old-timers around these lakes—June, Gull, Silver and Grant—who smoke their pipes and contemplate the situation philosophically. Sports they are, 100 per cent. They scorn worms and salmon eggs. They see the frantic fishing that's going on now, they see the dozens of cabins rising in the timber, stores here and there, automobiles beating it along the roads, and wonder what it's coming to.

But they're just this kind of a sport. The harder the game the better they like it. They don't believe it possible to fish out these deep lakes—that is, fish them out for them. Perhaps they'll only get one or two fish in a day where a few years ago they might have gotten a limit in an hour, but, man, think of the victory! They say these lakes aren't really as much fished out as they seem, for the fish have plenty of natural food in a fresh water shrimp that inhabits them, and it takes more than hard work and wiled worms to awaken their interest. It takes science, and these old-timers surely have science.

It was my good fortune to meet a couple of these old-time anglers. One of them is John Humiston of Long Beach, a brother of Fred L. Humiston, 1907 North Main street, Santa Ana. These brothers have been busy the past ten days building a cabin on a lot leased from the Forest Service by John Humiston.

For years, John Humiston has been camping at the edges of June and Gull lakes. Generally he puts in from four to six months right there. To be sure, he takes trips back into the high mountains to try out his flies and his theories on other lakes and on rushing streams. But this is headquarters. Just a few years ago his and one other were the only camps all summer long on this lake.

Humiston makes his own flies. He is that much of an enthusiast. He sends afar for feathers for his flies. Not long ago he bought four peacocks from a peacock farm near the Orange County hospital, and sent the birds to his ranch at Wasco. These birds will furnish bits of feathers for what he believes to be the surest thing in flies.

"It's so good," he said, showing it, along with many others, "that it is outlawed in part of England."

Still Getting Them

Thursday evening of last week after supper he rode around to the far end of June lake, rigged out his favorite poles, tied on his leader and his favorite fly, waded out in rubber boots, cast a few times, making a throw of 40 or 45 feet, water that had been traversed and crossed and recrossed by trollers and whipped by fly fishermen all day. He got two good sized trout. That was all he needed for the meal. So he quit. Perhaps, after all, the old-timers have no cause to worry. They're still getting 'em.

The second old-fashioned angler I had the pleasure of meeting and whose flies also I looked upon as J. H. Northrup, 1013 North Broadway, Santa Ana. Northrup's cabin on Silver lake is well known to quite a number of Santa Anans.

We had no sooner seen Northrup than he wanted to take us riding in his motorboat, but we had to decline.

We wanted to see him cast a few. We'd heard he judged his throw so that the fly touched the water first, if that seemed best to tease the trout that particular day, or if that didn't suit the trout he'd throw so that the line end of the leader touched first. Trout have whims and these real fishermen spy out their whims and play up to them. If a trout won't take a black and fly, give him a whiff at a brown hackle or a silver doctor or something else that's tasty and attractive.

A Remarkable Array

But we didn't have time to ride in the boat or watch him fish. We did have time, however, to drop in to his cabin and look over an array of flies that would make the eyes of any angler bulge out.

"Do you use a 3-foot leader or a 6-foot leader?" asked one of the boys.

"Neither," replied the expert, "seven foot six inches."

Northrup, by the way, is an inventor of national repute. He has played up to his own hobby by inventing a box fitted with violins into which he has put his flies—dozens of them of every known variety and some, we suspect, known to him alone. Moths cannot feast upon them, and dust cannot disturb their luster.

Northrup told of a recent fishing trip he had to Garnet lake. That's a lake back in the mountains four or five hours back from Silver. It's one of those that is not yet fished out. That is it wasn't a month ago when Northrup was there. Its comparative inaccessibility has so far protected it as inaccessibility—com-

WEST COAST-WALKER

Heading the Fanchon and Marco Presentation Vaudeville at the West Coast-Walker theater tonight is Don Barclay, the world famous comedian, formerly with Zeigfeld Follies in New York. Mr. Barclay had the audience in an uproar with his clever mind reading last night. Mr. Jackson Murray, of Kolb and Dill fame, held the audience spellbound with his singing and took several curtain calls. Miss Dottie Gilbert, who has won many admirers with her wonderful dancing has again stopped the show with one of the most comical dances ever presented in Santa Ana. She finished with a fast tap dance. Evelyn Mannis, the miniature "Fannie Brice" and one of the youngest and cleverest comedienne on the stage, surprised the audience with her offering and was a decided hit.

The picture rounds out a perfect entertainment, for Lon Chaney in "The Penalty" has again proved his superiority in the art of make-up and character acting, as he plays the legless king of the underworld.

In only three American cities abides the spirit of true romance, a noted author wrote a few years ago, and mentioned San Francisco as first among them. Other writers have successfully searched for romance in still other towns, but none has gained the first, regarding San Francisco, especially in that period represented in Lon Chaney's "The Penalty," which closes tonight at the West Coast-Walker, when the underworld of the coast city had no rival in the world.

If for no other reason, "The Penalty" would be remarkable as a definite record of the scenes in the celebrated Barbary Coast before reform and prohibition swept out the vice that lurked in every alley and underground retreat by day, and stalked forth unashamed by night. Here are pictured the very sites of the revelry and moral abandon that once made Frisco notorious wherever men gathered to talk of cities.

The sights are real. Only the story is fictitious. A great deal worse happened in the "good old days." Chaney plays the part of a man so embittered by a circumstance of fate that makes him a permanent cripple for life that he becomes a desperate criminal waging war against the entire community.

YOST SPUGEON

It is generally understood that actors are the most superstitious people in the world, but running them a close second is the automobile racer. The benzine buggy speedster is a dare-devil who risks his life every time he whizzes down the track after the pistol's crack and he is ready to accept almost any sort of talisman that may bring him victory.

A rabbit's foot is the usual symbol of good luck, but during the recent automobile races held at Fulford, Fla., a brown derby brought good luck to Pete de Paolo, the reigning king of the speed track, and another brown derby brought luck to Harry Hartz, who crossed the line second in the race.

It so happened that Johnny Hines was filming scenes for "The Brown Derby," his new First National picture produced by C. C. Burr, which is scheduled for the Yost Spurgeon theater Tuesday and Wednesday. Johnny's weakness is an automobile race, and work was called off that day so that the comedian could watch the races.

MATINEE WEDNESDAY

In view of the thousands of questions that have been answered by the Mummy the past three days so very satisfactorily, Manager Walker of the West Coast-Walker decided to give the ladies of Santa Ana a special matinee on Wednesday afternoon. The Mummy book which contains all the astrological forecasts for 1926 will be presented free of charge to every patron of the theater that day. These books give your character traits and advise what ailments to beware of, also advises you on your love affairs and business and gives you the proper vocation for your life's work. Manager Walker is so pleased with this book that he wished to see all the ladies of Santa Ana get one for their own use. In addition to that the

YOST BROADWAY THEATER

It is constantly necessary to bring new faces to the screen in order to satisfy and interest the motion picture public. Various producers and directors are especially credited with "finding" new screen material; with making discoveries; with being able to "pick" the winner.

There is no director or producer in the industry who has made a greater number of screen "finds" than Marshall Neilan.

In the cast of his latest production, "Wild Oats Lane," which plays at Yost Broadway theater today and tomorrow, a trio of actors, never in the films before, play important roles.

John F. MacDonagh, who has the role of a gambling priest, is a well known stage actor, Jerry Miley, assigned to the "heavy" role, makes his initial bow in the celluloid after considerable stage experience and George Barnum, stage director for Belasco in Los Angeles for many years and also a veteran player, plays the heroine's father.

Nellian "found" Wesley Barry and put him in his first screen role. He took Colleen Moore from obscurity and gave her a role in his "Dinty," that brought her to stardom.

He chose Raymond Griffith, who had made an unsuccessful attempt to become an actor, from a scenario department and as a parative inaccessibility—has proffered a lot of other lakes to which the automobile cannot run.

New Fish Hatchery

We stopped for a few minutes at the state's new Fern Creek trout hatchery, an institution not yet two months old. Fish leaving Grant lake to spawn were trapped, the eggs squeezed from them, and the eggs taken to the troughs in a tent. There are now some eight or ten troughs through which cold water runs. After three weeks the eggs hatched. Today there are some half million baby trout swimming hungrily about in the water. Milk and beef liver are their principal foods. They look like little tadpoles. When they are two inches long they will be turned loose in Rush creek.

And that process will be repeated many times hereafter. The hatchery building now going up will have accommodations for turning out millions of little trout. Enough will survive so that even with accessibility, this string of lakes will always have an answer to the question "Fished Out?"

And that may be the answer for the future for this string of lakes. But it will take another hatchery to keep the Mammoth lakes from going dry of fish, and the San Joaquin river right now could use a hatchery all its own.

Mummy will answer any question that you may ask it.

The Mummy has been busy advising patrons as to their love affairs, business problems, health, wealth, if they will succeed or fail, if their wife or husband is true and all sorts of questions that they may think of or be interested in. The attraction is here for the balance of the week and the Mummy is located on the mezzanine floor of the theater and will inform you on any vital question free of charge. Believe no one—see for yourself.

Fascinating Beauty

One's face should make one —NOT betray one!

El Estado LEMON CREME

UNDERNEATH the stains left by sun and wind, underneath the blemishes of unsightly tan and mudiness, your skin lies creamy, smooth and exquisite. Perhaps you don't know that you can restore that lovely pallor and the satin texture which used to be your pride. El Estado LEMON CREAMING CREAM used regularly eradicates disgusting blemishes and leaves the skin transparently clear and smooth. The fragrant LEMON OIL in this cream does for your face what the harsher lemon juice does for your hands. Whitens and refreshes. Remember El Estado LEMON CREAM is a real lemon oil—NEVER a drop of those dangerous acids, to dry and pucker the skin, nor noxious animal fats to coarsen the delicate texture. Massaged gently into the skin, with careful upward strokes, then wiped off with a soft cloth, this wonderful cream will free your face of those horrid blemishes, enlarged pores, and worry lines. If left on all night, after first being used to cleanse the face thoroughly, it will reveal a youthful freshness and a freedom from tan that will win you a new even after the first trial. It is featured in dollar jars at most toilet goods counters, but if you wish to try it before you buy it, we will gladly mail you a free sample. * * * El Estado Products Co., Seattle, Washington.

WHAT SAN FRANCISCO COMPANY GIVEN OUTFALL JOB

Legal requirements, as set forth in written orders, clashed with business judgment, based on professional advice and experience, when last night, at the city council meeting, the trustees awarded the general contract for the extension of the outfall sewer to the Butte Electrical Equipment company, San Francisco, at $183,445.

Before voting on the bids, Chester A. Smith, consulting engineer of the joint outfall district, told the councilmen that from an engineering standpoint he was not entirely satisfied with the bid submitted by the San Francisco firm.
He ventured the opinion that the bid was altogether too low and that in all probability the bidder would lose money on the contract. He told the trustees that he had so advised the contractor, after having gone over the plans and specifications with the latter.

Bidder Has Good Record
He declared, however, that aside from this consideration he had nothing that could be added against the bid, adding that the bidder had a good record, financially responsible, and carried a good rating.

Councilman Stanley Goode questioned the advisability of considering the bid in view of the statement made by the consulting engineer. He pointed out that, while it is highly desirable to secure advantageous figures for the carrying out of public improvements, thus saving the taxpayers money, it is equally important that the work be done in the right way and by experienced people. He further stated that he would not vote on the bid unless the consulting engineer made a formal recommendation for its acceptance.

Claims Morally Bound Councilman E. B. Collier voiced the belief that the council was morally bound to accept the low bid, unless there were good reasons to the contrary. Speaking further, he pointed to the possibility of a taxpayer bringing suit against council should they decide to reject the low bid.

Following some further discussion on the subject, and at the specific request of the council, the consulting engineer recommended that the bid of the Butte Electric Equipment company be accepted. He qualified his recommendation, however, with the explanation that under the provisions of the law he could not do otherwise.

In accepting the bid of the San Francisco firm, a clause was inserted requiring the contractor to carry all insurance incidental to the contract with Orange county insurance brokers.

Contract for Screens
A subsidiary contract for installing of additional screens in the treating plant was given to the Dorr company at $21,695.

The contract calls for 150 working days, operations to begin at once.
Bids were received from the following firms for the general contract: Butte Electric Equipment company, $173,820, plus coating $9,825; J. H. Tillman company, $219,800; C. R. Ross, $221,250; Merritt-Chapman company, $259,646; A.
Gespich, $273,093.

CITY'S SEWER BONDS SOLD TO L. A. COMPANY

An unexpected development marked last night at the council chamber, the opening of bids for the new $182,000 issue of municipal outfall sewer bonds when, against general expectations and much to the surprise of local financiers, it was found that the best bids came from outside banking institutions, that of the First Securities company, Los Angeles, topping the list, with a premium of $9389.

Following some discussion, in the course of which it was first suggested that the various bids be referred to the attorney of the outfall sewer district for checking, it was decided to accept the bid of the First Securities company. This action was taken following a request of bankers present at the meeting that the award be made at once, rather than await checks accompanying the bids, aggregating a considerable sum, might be returned at once to the unsuccessful bidders.

Altogether six bids were received for the bonds. They were as follows: First Securities company,
Los Angeles, premium of $9389;
Bank of Italy, 8988; R. E. Campbell and company, $8552; First National bank of Santa Ana, $5254.40; Dean Witter and company, $7943; Anglo-London-Paris company, $6935.

The bonds, dated July 1, 1926, will be issued in denominations of $1000 each, bearing interest at the rate of 5 per cent, payable semi-annually.

REGATTA FLAGS ADD GAY NOTE TO BAY SCENE

On every side are heard statements that the 1926 regatta at the Newport Harbor Yacht club, will exceed in point of interest and in hospitality any previous effort.
Nothing is being spared to make the visiting yachtsmen feel at home, and the clubhouse has never offered a friendlier spirit nor a more attractive appearance.

The daylight scene is striking.
The club burgees, pennants, great flags and banners give a brilliant color that is reflected in rainbow tints in the waters of the bay. All four sides of the clubhouse are embellished with flags and banners artistically arranged. On the deck where the "Rockingchair Fleet" watches the activities on the bay, the brilliant display of flags and banners is softened with palm leaves.

Bronzed young Vikings stride along the dock, leap nimbly into a sail boat and scud across the waters before the breeze like young sea gods. Young girls, tinted to a warm golden brown by the sun's ardent rays, swim like mermaids across the bay. Ernest-eyed little lads handle their small boats like veterans. All is life, color, gaiety.

At night, the scene is even more arrestingly beautiful. From the with the merchandise they buy or the service they receive. One business firm in Santa Ana always operates on the supposition that the customer is right, the manager said.

If a customer really thinks he is right, that makes him so in the eyes of this firm and it settles the matter satisfactorily with the customer. And this was the same firm and the only one, that thought women were not as dependable as men.

Women are paid about the same wages that men receive in similar positions, but the reason they do not make so much money is because the state allows them to work only eight hours a day, and the men earn more on account of overtime. One large store said the women were much more efficient than the men, and more conscientious. Married women employed in stores almost equal in numbers the unmarried.
Many are working because of absolute necessity, but others are at work in order that they may buy with their wages finery which hobby simply cannot afford to purchase for them.

great windows, the lights send bright shafts across the softly flowing waters. The myriads of colored lights just beneath the eaves of the clubhouse, are reflected in a thousand tiny ripples. From the ballroom, the music float softly over the bay and completes the illusion of fairyland.

Our Loan Plan

A loan from us differs from a straight loan in that the principal decreases monthly and interest is paid only on the decreasing

BILLY EVANS SAYS

There is much variety to the batting averages of the major leagues this year. It has added zest to the hectic battle for the swat crown.

Instead of Rogers Hornsby being out in front in the National, almost alone, we find two comparative unknowns, Rube Bressler and Babe Herman, among leading contenders. In the American league, Bob Fothergill and Bib Falk are making things interesting for Champion Harry Heilmann and ambitious Babe Ruth.

Unquestionably Bib Falk is the sensation of the year from a batting standpoint. However, he has gone about his work in such a quiet manner, that he has failed to receive the high consideration it deserves.

Likewise, Rube Bressler, who was once a pitcher for Connie Mack, has gone about his work of leading the National without any of the "hoo-ray" stuff and has been but little press-agented.

It is a rather strange coincidence that Bressler and Falk began their careers as pitchers. Both early showed a disposition to hit that won them berths as regulars.

Only a few years back when Johnny Evers was in charge at Chicago, he decided to use Falk as a pitcher rather than an outfielder.

Just when it seemed his fate was sealed to go back to pitching, an injury to one of the Chicago outfielders forced Falk back into the game. It was at the Yankee stadium in New York and all Falk did to win the game for Chicago was to make two home runs and turn in a diving catch that saved the game after his battle had put the White Sox out in front. He's been starring at the bat and in the outfield ever since.

During his major league career, Falk's lowest mark was made in his first year, 1921, when he batted .255. His best showing was in 1924, when he totaled .352. Over a period of five years in the big show he has an average of .308.

This year he has hovered around the .375 mark most of the time and with the season two-thirds over has maintained that strenuous gait. Bressler, over a period of 10 years, has hit an even .300 in the majors, his best mark being last season, when he hit .348. This year he is stepping well beyond that figure.

Bob Fothergill of the Detroit Tigers, who has been around the .400 mark this year, since given a place as regular, has always been rated a good batsman.

Never during his professional career has he finished outside the charmed circle of .300 hitters. He has a .324 average for his four years with Detroit.

Fothergill has an easy style at the plate and hits more line drives than long flies. He is not noted for getting great distance, simply "hits them where they ain't."

Babe Herman, who has been tossed hither and thither for some years by various major league clubs without getting a trial, has been the big noise at Brooklyn so far this season.

While the two champions, Heilmann and Hornsby, are still very much in the running, the strong showing of four other players, little considered, has added much interest to the races for the batting title.

DON'T MISS TO-MORROW'S SENSATIONAL EPISODE "THE RING"

Across the Atlantic there arises a French menace in this year's Davis Cup competition. America can feel slightly alarmed concerning its retention of the famous tennis trophy for France is bent on stopping this country's long regime in international competition. France's four Davis Cup team stars are pictured below.

They cover a long reign in these days when champions, whether individual or group, don't remain on top very long. Of course, America's stars may once again rise to the occasion and crush another challenger. But I wouldn't be startled if the present Davis cup regime were stopped this season with the French turning a trick they failed to put over last year.

America has won the Davis cup, emblematic of the tennis championship of the world, six straight seasons, or ever since the lanky Bill Tilden first became this country's biggest figure in the game.

During that span Uncle Sammy's boys have dropped just two matches in 30. Patterson and Wood of Australia whipped Tilden and Richards in the doubles in 1922, while Johnny Anderson, another Antipodean, beat Johnston the following year.

In the four other annual clashes, America has scored shutouts, two on Australia, and one each against Japan and France. In short, most of the challenge rounds have been nothing more than a rout for the Americans.

The French Menace This year, however, things look different. America's representatives are quite apt to find a real tussle on their hands when they defend their honors at the Germantown Cricket club, Philadelphia, early in September. Such an event is likely providing the interzone play terminates as expected.

Across the Atlantic there again looms a French menace, just as it did a year ago. Only this time it's a much larger one. For along with Lacoste, Borotra and Brugnon will also come Henri Cochet. Cochet may furnish the punch needed to overthrow the Americans.

I wouldn't be surprised if some of the younger crop of players like Eddie Chandler, Alfred Chapin and George Lott carry the destinies of the country in the international classic within another year or two. A change is bound to come sooner or later. New and younger blood will shortly be needed.

Six consecutive world titles is something to boast about.

MISS BARRETT IS BEATEN BY CHANNEL

DOVER, England, Aug. 3.—Clara-belle Barrett today admitted the English channel's ability to defeat her, when after a marvelous swimming performance that brought her Johnston the following year.

The official time of the American girl's swim was 21 hours and 40 minutes. She started from Dover at 7:55 a. m. Monday and abandoned her attempt at 5:35 a. m. today. The actual distance covered during the swim probably never will be known since cross tides and currents would add many miles to the bare 20 miles lying between Dover and the closest point on the French shore.

Captain James S. Learmonth, the British pilot who was aboard the tug which accompanied Miss Barrett, was tremendously impressed by the American girl's feat.

"We couldn't see five yards ahead of us because of the fog," he said. "She must have marvelous staying powers. I asked her if she would try again and she told me she never would come back."

The New York Giants walked away from the St. Louis Cardinals 4-2. The actual distance covered during the swim probably never will be known since cross tides and currents would add many miles to the bare 20 miles lying between Dover and the closest point on the French shore.

Bob Hasty held the Seals to five hits and the Indians won 3 to 2. Guy Williams gave but seven blows but his wildness was his own. The Seals won the series five games to three.

or later. New and younger blood will shortly be needed. Six consecutive world titles is something to boast about.

JACK DEMPSEY ON WAY EAST READY FOR WAR

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Doing his old time stuff as a warrior on his way to battle instead of a champion ducking boxing commissions, challengers, process servers and general annoyances, Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion of the world, was returning east today.

Dempsey headed into New York announcing that he was going to look around some shopping places for a few days and then start for White Sulphur Springs, where he will begin training for the defense of his title against Gene Tunney, a contest scheduled but not yet licensed for September 16 in the Yank stadium.

The champion had his usual line, "I'm ready to do the fighting. I'll leave the worrying to someone else," he said.

The "some one else," in other cases, was Jack Kearns, his former manager, but in this instance he must have meant that Tex Rickard was the custodian of the well known bag.

Rickard, it seems, has two big fighters signed for fancy prices, a date and a ball park at his disposition and no license.

Among the scores of reports heard today was one that Rickard had affected a reconciliation between Dempsey and Jack Kearns and had headed off legal action by Kearns, whose contract with Dempsey expires today.

If Kearns could prove that the contract between Dempsey and Rickard had been signed before today he could ask the courts for his out of the champion's purse.

Dempsey also was notified today that Chicago promoters had applied for an injunction in the federal court in Denver to restrain Dempsey from fighting "anyone anywhere" until he had fought Willis in Chicago.

POLY FOOTBALL COACH WILL BE HERE MONDAY

"Tex" Oliver, new football coach at Poly high school this year, will be in Santa Ana all next week and at that time will take the first steps towards turning out a championship football team for the local high school.

Oliver will spend the entire week here and has requested the sports writer of The Register to inform the football candidates at Poly that he is anxious to meet them, especially the backfield candidates. Oliver will be at the Andrews' gymnasium at 9 a. m. and 2 p. m., each day next week.

"Tex" is attending summer school at U. S. C. this summer, as is Walter Scott, supervisor of physical education for the Santa Ana public schools. "Tex" has been listening in every day to Coach Jones' lectures at U. S. C., probably with the view of grabbing off a new idea or two.

According to Scott the new football mentor is rarin' to go and says "If Santa Ana doesn't put a real contender in the field this year, I don't believe anyone will be able to blame the coach. I am sure he knows his stuff, and I also think Santa Ana is fortunate to secure his services."

FLUOR'S VICTORIOUS OVER LEE'S FOUNTAIN

Johnson hurled airtight ball for the Fluor Construction team in the Indoor Baseball league last night and his team piled up enough runs in the last three innings to win from the Lee's Fountain team by a score of 8 to 1. Johnson allowed but three hits.

It was not until the sixth inning that the Fluor team solved and touched him for the first run. Lee's Fountain came back in the first of the seventh and evened up the count by pushing a run across. In the seventh two more runs were hammered in by the Fluor boys and in the eighth the big parade started and after the last man has passed the reviewing stand five runs had been pushed across the plate.

Paul De Hate To Fight On Friday

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 3.—Paul DeHate will appear in his first main event at the Hollywood American Legion stadium, Friday night, when he meets Paul Dempsey of Australia. It will be the first of three appearances that DeHate is scheduled to make at the stadium.

Dempsey is rated as one of the cleverest fighters in the junior welterweight division and with great things expected of DeHate this should prove an interesting match.

Ray Pelky, of Oakland, and Jack Roper, light heavyweights, will put on the six-round semi-windup. Jimmy Piela will meet Dick DeHoog in a six-round match. In two four-round fights Jimmy Laventhal will meet Leo Mitchell and Morris Eagleson will take on Phil Cohen.

NEW YORK—Willie Hoppe defeated Harry Shultz 50 to 28 in the opening of a 300-point three-cushion billiard match which will run until Saturday night.

CHICAGO—The "greatest juvenile championship in history" is indicated by the large early entry list for the eastern junior golf tournament at Chicago next week. Officials declared. Entries are coming in from all over the United States and Canada.

200 Entrants In Channel Contest

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 3.—With the seventh annual Silver Gate Channel swim less than a week off, more than 200 swimmers, mainly from Southern California, are training daily here over the 600-yard course in preparation for the event.

Late entries are Olive Hatch, of the Los Angeles Athletic club; Hilda Curtis, unattached, in the women's swim, and Wally O'Connor, of the Venice Plunge Swimming association, in the men's division.

The swim will be held next Sunday, the women going into the water at 3 o'clock and the men at 3:30 o'clock.

INDIANS MAKE STRONG BATTLE FOR A. L. FLAG

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Nothing that has transpired in this hectic baseball season can compare with the unexpected fight that the New York Yankees and the Cleveland Indians are making for the American league championship.

There may have been fans in New York and in Cleveland who felt that their clubs had a chance for the pennant but they were a small majority and around the circuit the two clubs were ignored in the flattering comment about the Philadelphia Athletics, the St. Louis Browns and the Washington Senators.

Seeing the Yankees and the Indians battling for the pennant and the Athletics, Senators and Browns rear, recalls an interesting incident that happened in the lobby of the Yankees' hotel in St. Petersburg last spring.

Joe Williams, the popular sport editor of the Cleveland Press, came in from Lakeland, where the Indians were working, and had a look at the Yankees' sad looking outfit at that time.

"What do you think of the Yankees?" Col. Ruppert, owner of the New York club, asked Williams the next morning.

"Well, Colonel," Joe answered, "they may be even worse than the Indians. I'm not sure yet."

"Will you back that up with a suit of clothes?" Ruppert asked.

"Yeh, that's a bet," Williams came back.

Ruppert then turned to George Perry, one of his secretaries, and said—"You send that fellow a telegram every time we win a game."

The sensational reversal of form has put Ruppert and Williams in a class as the only wise dickers that visited the southern training camps, for Col. Ruppert insists: "We were talking about the Yankees and the Indians as good teams, not as rotten ones. When Joe said that the Yankees might be worse than the Indians he meant that he figured on a lost race and that the Yankees would be worse enough only to finish second instead of beating out Cleveland."

The form shown by the two clubs this season just goes to prove what can be done by the injection of spirit into the material even if the material is none too brilliant.

The Yankees, in the early days of their training period, looked like the worst club that ever had played in the major leagues.

The bell-hops at the Yankees' hotel always had an annual game with the baseball writers but last spring they said they were too good for the scribes and were willing to play the Yanks.

"We can only have seven boys off duty at one time but we can beat the Yankees with one outfielder," they said.

The Indians, of course, didn't look as bad. No club could. But the Indians did not impress the critics as a pennant winning possibility.

They say around the circuit that the Cleveland owners put the players on a profit-cutting bonus plan but whatever was done it was nothing to spoil harmony. It has not been recorded that Tris Speaker has been forced to fine or beat up any of his ball players for not hustling.

The improvement in the Yankees came as the result of a number of things. Babe Ruth started to play again. Koenig and Lazzeri made good and plugged up a weak infield and the team got away to a sensational start in the exhibition with the Brooklyn Robins and started to believe in itself.

LENGLEN WILL PAY VISIT TO S. A. THIS FALL

Suzanne Lenglen will visit Santa Ana this fall.

Keep your hat on, Rhubarb, such a thing is within the realm of possibilities and practically within the realm of probabilities.

Yesterday the wires carried a message from France to the effect that the ambassador, or whatever the title is, is called, of the nets was to come to America under the direction of C. C. Pyle, who weaned Red Grange away from the ice business and the study halls of Illinois university long enough to gather together a few green backs, ad lib.

Grange and Pyle came to Santa Ana as the guests of the Santa Ana Junior Chamber of Commerce. Pyle was so pleased with the reception given his little red-head that he promised he would bring Suzanne down here if he got her to California.

Pyle said he was going to bring her over here, and he proceeded to leave Santa Ana for France at once, to do it.

And now it is up to "Cash and Carry" to make good his word, and he will be sufficiently reminded of his promise to make the necessary arrangements, it was indicated.

Just what the nature of the appearance of the sharp-sighted Suzanne in Santa Ana would take on, Pyle did not say, but he promised in a loud voice that he would bring her down here.

Play tennis or penny ante, Suzanne would attract a crowd.

Shifty Suzie in Santa Ana. Well, well, we shall wait and see. Pyle made good on his promise to bring Grange down and started right out after Suzanne.

And well, well, we shall wait and see.

Rain stopped proceedings between Boston and Cleveland, necessitating a double header today.

PRELIMINARIES MONDAY BRING ABOUT THRILLS

Hydroplanes Hold Boards in Races This Morning—Program for Afternoon

With the main events of the sixth annual regatta of the Southern California Yachting association to open today with the hydroplane races on the bay courses in the forenoon hours and the miscellaneous races over the ocean course in the afternoon, interest among the 300 or more guests was intense, and was heightened by the various preliminary events of yesterday.

These were all in the afternoon, beginning at 1:30 with boats of the Marlon class. All entries represented the harbor district and were from either Newport Harbor Yacht club or Southland Sailing club. In the opening race, the (Marlons) first place was taken by Harold Staley, sailing the Blue Moon; second by Theo. Herzog with the Felix and third by E. Roy Davidson with Don Lee.

In the Sea Mew class which followed, first place was taken by H. Duncan with Tiger Cat; second by D. Murphy with Black Cat and third by F. Davenport with Pal O' Mine.

Probably the most importance attached to the Snow Birds and the race was a very pretty one in which first honors were taken by Robert Van Landingham sailing the Bob White; second by Sidney Maxfield with the Sara and third by William Parlette with Parakeet. The final event was the Bay Handicap in which boats of widely varying class were entered, each handicapped to equalize the entries. In this Doris came in first, sailed by T. B. Foster, with second place going to W. Fitch with the Hai Win and third to C. Upson with the Almar.

Of today's events, the opening will be the time trials for the hydroplanes which are of 151 cubic inch displacement. At 10:30 the main event will come, an 18 mile race run in three heats.

Many famous boats are entered for the afternoon races over the ocean course, including Harold Burgeson's General, holder of the national speed title, and Dick Kelly's Smiling Dan III, national champion. These are among the six entries for the Southland title. The races will open the 1926 series and other famous boats of both Star and R. class will enter.

NASH DEALERS

Used Car Reduction Sale
Six Days of OPPORTUNITY Six Days!
PRICES SLASHED! NO INTEREST!

From August 2nd to August 7th inclusive, we are going to clean house in our Used Car Department. We have reduced our prices to a point that renders them incomparable at this time in any part of Southern California. And in addition to this—due to our strong financial condition—we are going to carry the unpaid balance on these sales with absolutely no interest charge.

This is not a closing out sale, nor is it a forced sale in any way. We have been in business in Santa Ana for eleven years and expect to continue in the automobile business here for most of the remaining part of our lives. Our balance sheet is open to our customers, our merchandise must needs be as sound as our business. A sound business, selling a sound proposition or merchandise insures you against a bad investment.

Here is the cause for this sale:

During the past three months we have sold seventy-one new Nash Six Cars. This amount of business alone, to avoid congestion, requires most of our two 100x120 ft. floors. But in addition to this we have also sold approximately 98 Used Cars. What shall we do in August? We have conservatively estimated our New Car business for this month at twenty-five new Nash Sixes, which means probably twenty more trade-ins. What are we going to do with them? Until we have made arrangements for more floor space we are going to make room for them by the above method.

Neither is this a complaint. It is extremely gratifying to us to have such a condition exist in our business. It is only 100% proof that "Orange County Has Gone Nash" and that our personal service has been satisfactory in the past. We pledge ourselves to in no degree lessen its standard in the future and to offer the same courtesy henceforth regardless of any opportunity for independence.

A visit to our Used Car Department will be appreciated whether a purchase is made or not.

It's a Poor Town That Won't Wash Its Own Shirt

Article I

"Say! a fellow came in with this display stand a couple of months ago," said the La Jolla druggist, "and I've been selling this preparation like hot flapjacks. Everybody comes back for more — take a chance on it."

In my hide-bound way, I had asked for a certain eastern preparation. This was one made in Los Angeles, purely local in reputation. I took a chance, however, and found it so much better than now, where I happen to be, I'll send for it — and some day it should grow into the national market.

Coming to Southern California last winter, after 10 years, it was easy to see that the country had grown. More folks, more homes, more motor traffic, more money — more everything. Boulevard where the barflies had been, and suburbs where I'd seen them digging the sabre-tooth tiger out of the wonderful La Brea asphalt pits.

But there was something else that interested me as a writer.

My wife went into stores and asked for things by brand — the familiar household words of the east. Southern California had its own household words. She got soap powder, sausage, shoes and smocks of local manufacture.

Coming into Los Angeles from the south, by train, I saw factories. Ten years ago there had been no factories.

"New factories started at the rate of more than one a day," friends told me. "Are they not wonderful — our home industries?"

"I don't know," was my answer. "I've walked at least twice around the world, through factories. Let me look around here, and I'll tell you later."

So, for several months, I've been walking, watching, asking questions.

To begin at the beginning, it's a mighty poor town that won't wash

JAMES H. COLLINS

adventuring in this new world, which means so much to many folks in this section, and is so little dreamed of by others. There are some things to tell. I don't pretend to know it all. This fact is industries are not spectacular to look at. You will find no rubberneck buses taking tourists to the east side.

What becomes of your old tin cans and cracked bottles is interesting to hear. The cans become habbit metal and pig-iron, the glass goes into window panes. But seeing that — a hot, dusty walk through a noisy plant.

Generally, folks in Southern California are proud of their industries without knowing much about them. It will help the industries, and help you, if you knew more. And so I've undertaken to tell you.

First the town washes its own shirt. Then it makes soap, and some roundabout. Then it gets into the "big time," manufacturing what it has been buying far off. And then the fun begins!

For, while everything is going well in this new field of Southern California's enterprise, these are still infant industries. They need considerable nursing. They need correction and teaching. They must be helped, largely by public understanding, to grow up with healthy bodies, and alert brains, and dependable business morals — the latter very important, though sometimes overlooked.

There is a world of romance in these enterprises, and also the unromantic aspect of failure, often preventable. Men have started on a shoestring and made a go of some lines while other men have lost money in financing industrial projects. Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford is here — he always comes where there is strong public interest to furnish free advertising for his worthless schemes. But there are also hundreds of men and women with special knowledge, serving the new industries, and thousands of workers with special skill acquired in older industrial sections. Really, if you had time to go adventuring with me, and compare the home concerns with the best elsewhere, you would be proud of the folks who are developing these new resources, and finding a livelihood in them.

Infants! Some in the cradle, growing lustily. Some have had their bottles stolen. Some growing up on the streets, as they can. Some on their way to school, and having their ears stuffed and noses bloodied by the big bad boys of competition. Some giving back blow for blow, and a little more for good measure.

Next Tuesday, another place here, as Will Rogers says — we will see whether community patriotism plays any part in the growth of home industry, and how far it should go, if at all.

EVENING SALUTATION

"Every man is enthusiastic at times. One man has enthusiasm for thirty minutes—another man has it for thirty days, but it is the man who has it for thirty years who makes a success in life." Its lovely song you're often heard.

CHANGES IN SPORTS

A few days ago The Register published reminiscences in which Robert Flook, a pioneer here, told of old-time contests for the croquet championship of Southern California. Whereupon some of the other old-timers began turning their minds backward to days when sports were on a somewhat different scale than they are now.

True, forty years ago Santa Ana had its famous baseball players. The team of that day, the members of which included C. E. Parker, "Husky" Young, and George Peters, drew everybody in town to the sidelines. Of all the sports, baseball survives nearest to its original form. Indoor, true, has made a place for itself, but the hard ball game is still the great American game, the greatest of them all.

In the '80's, it is recalled, quite a number were deeply interested in the racing of greyhounds. Tobe Raney and Thomas Walsmley were among those who had hounds that could double up and undouble with remarkable swiftness and precision. Many was the jackrabbit run down in this sport. It was a sport with points, too, and the ability of a dog to take a turn was marked up for or against him by the judges.

More recent than croquet and rabbit chasing came football, which today has attained remarkable popularity. Croquet and rabbit chasing have dropped by the wayside. Baseball has survived, football has developed from a game of mass plays into forward passing and speed in open play, and golf has come up out of obscurity to a steady job in the amusements of many people.

There are thousands of Orange county people interested in sports, yet personally thousands of them engage in no sports activity. Most of us enjoy outings. Fortunately, at our doors are both mountains and sea. Those who cannot for any reason, either disinclination or ill health, bathe in the surf can bask in the sun. Basking in the sun can hardly be called a sport, but it's healthful, and surely sports are sports only when they give one a healthful interest in life, when they bring diversion from business or some other grind of daily routine. Outings and sports are akin.

Croquet may go and golf may come, but the great out-of-doors remains ours always. And in mountains and seashore, those of us who live here today have no advantage over the pioneers excepting in the fact that good roads and automobiles take us to them oftener than was possible forty years ago.

Money makes the motor go a lot faster than the mare ever did.

BOTH ON THE BALLOT

According to a dispatch from Sacramento two initiative reapportionment measures are to appear on the November ballot. Let us forget the importance of these reapportionment proposals, it is well that we keep in mind the difference between them and be prepared to strike the one that is unworthy and support the one that is worthy.

One plan is that offered by Los Angeles, for Los Angeles. The purpose is to increase the representation of Los Angeles in both houses of the Legislature. By it, the complete control of legislation in California will rest with the big cities.

The second plan is that offered by the Farm Bureau Federation. It proposes to continue the present plan, with population as the basis, for representation in the Assembly. Representation of any county in the State Senate, if this measure passes, will be limited, just as the representation of any state in the United States Senate is limited.

Orange county ought to vote unanimously in favor of the Farm Bureau reapportionment plan. If that measure carries, the county's influence through representation at Sacramento in the future will be enhanced. If it fails and the Los Angeles plan carries, our influence will be lessened.

Sadder, but probably a little wiser, is the vacationist who tries to get a whole summer's accumulation of tan in two weeks.

GOOD SPEECH

"Speech education," says a specialist in speech training, "is necessary because we talk for others, not for ourselves, and the well-trained speaker has the best of all methods for transmitting his thoughts."

Parents should begin good speech training for their children from the start. "Doesums likeums?" and the whole array of similar phrases of "baby talk" really do not make the infant any happier or indicate any greater parental affection than simple but correct speech would do, and they do leave bad speech habits to be overcome later.

Teachers, says this authority, should not confine their institution to grammar and spelling, but should include enunciation, pronunciation and voice resonance. Four factors help in the cultivation of correct and pleasant speech. They are:

Relaxation, the greatest need for all Americans; proper breathing; correct vocalization, meaning the right manipulation of vowels and consonants; and the habit of thinking, as opposed to the habit of mental haste to which Americans are so liable.

The English language is a beautiful one and deserves greater respect and better usage than it gets even from Americans born to it. Incidentally, a certain poise and calm come with correct and leisurely speech which would be beneficial to American nerves and character.

A magazine writer says men fall in love with women who remind them of their mothers. A lot of them must marry without falling in love.

DIVORCE CURE

Recently compiled statistics reveal the fact that Cuyahoga county, O., where Cleveland is situated, granted 825 more divorces during the year just ended than in the preceding year. Since Cleveland is not particularly noted for being any worse in this matter than other parts of the country, it is likely that these figures are indicative of the national tendency.

The causes and cure of divorce have been the serious concern of judges and preachers and other thoughtful citizens for many years. It is recognized that economic conditions make satisfactory home life difficult. Changing standards of home life, insufficient preparation for marriage, hasty marriages, lack of uniformity in state laws and various other factors have all been given their due attention in trying to solve the problem.

One writer on the subject pointed out a few months ago that too many young couples marry with the fairy tale expectation of "living happily ever after," and when they find that married life requires co-operation, hard work, self-discipline, sacrifice and other sterling but strenuous virtues, they simply flunk out.

Undoubtedly uniform state legislation in regard to marriage and divorce will help some by clearing up dubious situations and making any couple married in one state married in all. But more than that, it is necessary to educate young people—from childhood—to face their problems and to solve them instead of dropping or dodging the difficult ones. The development of a better social attitude—a matter of gradual evolution—is probably as important in this matter as legislation or court procedure.

Sweden has gone the psalmist one better by beating an armored cruiser into a floating fair to display her products to all the world.

California, Vacation Land

Pasadena Star-News

California should have its charms as a vacation spot and playground kept before the world. This is the season of year when vacationing is foremost in the thoughts and dreams of all. Many have taken theirs, or are taking theirs, or are preparing to go on vacation. And what a great diversity in tastes, as to place to spend the vacation! The seashore—hundreds of miles of it, in California—even, sandy, shores, broken, rocky shores—beaches to meet every fancy.

And by lakes and rivers, others will spend vacation—canoeing, fishing, camping, hiking—and the various and sundry recreations along the inland waters.

And in the forests—hundreds of thousands of acres of virgin timber, with here and there fascinating camps amidst the giants of the woodland.

And the picturesque canyons and lofty mountain peaks, with camping spots, and cabins, and the stories of wide landscapes in easy command of the eye.

But why dwell upon details? California runs the gamut in variety of vacation pleasures to be had, and in diversity of vacation spots. Wisely, federal and state governments, counties and municipalities, are dedicating broad areas for public parks and playgrounds. Nature's marvels and sublimities here are to be cherished in perpetuity as entrancing vacation spots and playgrounds. There is room for Californians, and there is room and a hearty welcome for vacationists in multitudes from other states and sections.

Sportsmen and Fire

Oakland Tribune

How good a sport is a sportsman? The Forest Service would like to know and is expecting the answer with the opening of the deer season in the Coast Range mountains on August 1.

Unless the sportsmen, the men who go hunting, help combat the critical fire situation and demonstrate by their conduct that they are fully alive to the importance of preserving the wooded regions, many of the forests will be closed.

Up to July 20, the Forest Service suppressed 160 fires started by smokers and over fifty fires started by campers. "In the face of these facts," says District Forester S. B. Snow, "I feel that the prohibition of smoking in the Federal forests, except at improved camps and places of habitation, is a precautionary measure thoroughly justified by the existing fire situation and one which sportsmen in general will approve."

Public use of the national forests will not be restricted except as a last resort. The visitors are asked to exercise personal care with fire and observe the "no smoking" regulations while they are in effect. Monitors are asked to caution their fellow travelers and take prompt action whenever a fire is discovered. The fairness in these requests will appeal to the real sportsmen.

Beauty of Trees

Pasadena Star-News

Many states are co-operating with the national government in the planting and conserving of forests. This extensive work of conservation is basically commercial. Forests are being planted and protected primarily because of their value for lumber production, or as watershed threats of floods.

But contemplate trees and forests from another aspect—trees and forests as visions of beauty. What is more beautiful than a symmetrical tree—or a group of trees?

Trees have been the inspiration of poets, artists and composers. The beautiful poem of the late Joyce Kilmer is frequently recited or set to music, sung.

It is worth all that is spent—all the strenuous efforts that are made, to protect forests for their sightliness, if for no other reason. The noblest landscapes would be barren and incomplete without trees in them. California is rich in its treasures of trees. Let them be conserved for their wondrous beauty—for the comfort and inspiration they give to those who behold them.

SHOE LEATHER IS MORE HEALTHFUL THAN GASOLINE

Ordinarily it is reserved for infants to learn to walk. However, there appears an imminent need for adults to learn as well, for the increasing use of motor cars and other forms of rapid transportation has lessened the use of the legs until there appears to be some danger of our forgetting their function in the process of locomotion.

That walking is coming into disuse is greatly to be regretted for it serves numerous valuable functions, among which may be mentioned exercise, diversion and assistance in health maintenance.

With the advent of rapid transportation, walking for pleasure has fallen largely into the discard. Even school children ride short distances to school when the trip could be made advantageously by foot.

The failure of walking to achieve wider popularity is due in large part to lack of appreciation of the advantages accruing from this commonest form of exercise. Walking is primarily recreational in character, for it offers changes of scene which are not too rapid for assimilation and appreciation.

To one who is observant, there is a never-failing variety of interesting occurrences and objects for observation. For one who is deficient in powers of observation there is an excellent opportunity for sharpening the senses of perception. No matter what may be the particular hobby of the walker, whether birds, trees, architecture, animals or automobiles, there is abundant opportunity for satisfying study of these subjects while taking a leisurely stroll or an invigorating hike.

Walking has the disadvantage of being free. Most diversions, on the other hand, cannot be indulged in without acquiring some apparatus or belonging to a special organization or club. Walking also has the misfortune of being a relatively mild exercise, offering little opportunity for competition, while many other sports stress strenuous activity and offer numerous chances for exciting.

In a world where there is much that persuades to discourage the scientists are rather cheerful.

A few years ago some inquisitive biologists decided to mate closely related male and female rats to see what would happen. They selected rats of the same family and watched the results of mating the best males and females and the weakest males and females to each other and continuing the process for 36 generations, which corresponds to centuries in human life. For all those generations they mated the best to each other, the strongest, the liveliest, the brightest. And at the end of the experiment they had their laboratory the finest generation of white rats ever seen on this planet.

But what was the result of the intermarriage of the weaker rats? Very simple. Long before the end of the 36 generations they had bred themselves out, had produced a generation without the power to reproduce itself. Nature took care of that!

The scientists, considering the results of the experiment, say, "Good is dominant." Scientists divide traits into true and false "dominants," true and false "recessives." Traits appear, disappear and reappear in living creatures, even vegetable organisms.

Thus, the scientists call "good" a dominant trait. Nature is deeply interested in its protection. She wishes her children to survive, and she protects anything that helps them do that—whether that something be a long neck, sharp teeth, deadly poison, a good digestive system, swift legs, or a cunning brain.

Whatever men use properly to make human life better, stronger, happier, nature will protect. For her it is good, it is dominant. Whatever they abuse and allow to decay, nature will also neglect.

We ought to keep this in mind. It is good morals, good custom, good business, good politics.

POPLARS

By day, these tall gaunt poplars are but trees.
Yet in the night, held in the moon's embrace,
Their supple bodies lean upon the breeze,
And sway as in a dance, with plumelike grace.
All in a row they stand, virgins who wait
Their turn to walk with love through Heaven's gate,
And waiting, sighing, life their silver spars
In patient supplication to the stars.

Or are the poplars where the winds intone.
The slim cathedral spires of the wood,
Where ancient folk with ritual long unknown
Worshipped their gods of Evil and of Good?
Night after night I feel their mysteries
And wake each morn to find them only trees.

Barbs By Tom Sims

Smile and the world smiles with you. Frown and the world laughs at you.

Never throw away a day until you get a new one.
You can't double your face value by being two-faced.
The new spring hat may be straw, but its price is felt.
If you kill enough time it will kill you.

If you care to choose the lesser of two evils, take up working instead of loafing.
Only six more months in which to pay your Christmas bills.
The modern girl is considered a good wife if she can put up with her husband's cooking.

Snoring is dangerous. It lets the burglars know you are asleep.

Little Benny's Note Book

By Leo Pope

This afternoon my cousin Artie came around and me and him started to play detectives, wawking up stairs on our hands and knees looking for clues, and we heard ma telephoning in the living room, saying, Well of all the ridiculous statements to make, she can't have much regard for the truth to talk like that and if I see her Ill certainly tell her so.

Ah hah, Sherlock, somebody seems to be suspected, I sed.

On the trail, Homes, Artie sed. And we snuck in the room and put our ears against the floor to hear better, ma saying, I believe there's a lady on the premises, Sherlock, and Artie saying, I hear her foot-steps, Homes.

Ma keeping on telephoning, saying, Wait a minnit, I can't hear you, just a moment, 'ill you children stop that whispering, how can I talk on the telephone with that going on?

Meaning us 2 detectives, and we kept on listening with our ears to the floor, ma saying into the fone, Hello, yes, yes, no, O is that so, well I never, can you beet it, reely?

There seems to be some mystery heer, Sherlock, I whispered.

A whole bunch of it, Homes, on the trail, Artie whispered back, and ma sed, Wat say? Jest a moment, now I've had jest about all I can stand of this whispering, Benny, do you want a good hard slap?

No mam, I sed.

Then act accordingly, ma sed.

Yes, mam, I sed.

And I quick snuck out backwerts and started to go down stairs the same way with Artie after me, ma saying, Follod, Sherlock, and him saying, Baffled, Homes.

BATHING

The family grabs up bathing suits and hops into the car. And, are they going bathing for the day? I'll say they are! The weather's hot as blazes and they're feelin' right in trim to cast the cares of home away and take a coolin' swim.

"Say, mom, kin I go 'way far out?" asks tiny little daughter. And mom shouts, "No! You'll fall and get your nose filled up with water." "Aw, I won't fall," replies the child. An argument's begun. "Gee, you and dad go way far out. I can't have any fun."

So mother stays in, close to shore, to keep her eye on sis. She seldom stops to think about the fun she's gonna miss. The youngster splitters splatters as she wades around, waist high, and runs to mom a million times. "There's sand got in my eye."

But dad—well he's out on a raft a bakin' in the sun; a divin' and a swimmin' and a having lots of fun. Then, when the day is over, it's no wonder mom gets sore. Pop kids her 'cause she always stays so dog-goned close to shore.

Protect the Public By Punishing the Guilty

Sacramento Bee

Simply awful is the official statement from the California division of motor vehicles, that during the first six months of this year no less than 6981 persons were killed or injured in this state in automobile accidents.

Of that total the deaths numbered 690—an average of nearly four a day!

And of the "injured" it is probable that a considerable number died, were permanently crippled, or otherwise seriously incapacitated for life.

And of the 690 killed, it is stated, more than 50 were victims of the cowardly and contemptible "hit-and-run" miscreants.

Regarding that report, Will H. Marsh, chief of the division of motor vehicles, has been quoted in The Bee's news columns as saying:

The highways will never be fool-proof as long as fools are driving, no matter how many officials are patrolling them. There must be an awakening of the public conscience against careless and reckless drivers.

Not until they are classified with the thug, the gunman and the highway robber will the situation improve materially.

That is vigorous denunciation, but in large measure justified. For the criminally careless and reckless drivers among the fools who frequently make the highways unsafe for even the most careful and sensible users of automobiles, likewise for persons on foot.

But where lies the remedy?

Evidently not in mere sentiment or public opinion, but in rigorous enforcement of the traffic laws; in the infliction of severe punishment upon all drivers criminally responsible in cases of accident.

How about Chief Marsh himself setting an example in this regard, through his large force of armed and uniformed traffic officers?

Possibly some of this frightful loss of life might be stopped if motor vehicle department officials paid less attention to politics and more to enforcement of law.

Oil Tank Fires a Problem

Popular Mechanics

An oil fire in California attributed to lightning, which caused the death of two men and a loss of 10 million dollars, has resulted in a search for some way of eliminating this hazard.

Oil storage tanks are necessarily so large that re-enforced concrete rather than metal is used for their construction. The tops are of wood, often covered with felt as a protection from the heat of the sun and evaporation. Frequently the space between the surface of the oil and the top of the tank becomes filled with an explosive mixture of air and oil vapors. In general, no lightning protection is used.

In experiments at the General Electric laboratory with artificial lightning and miniature oil tanks, it was shown that where there are explosive mixtures, the protection problem is exceedingly difficult. Just as a considerable voltage may appear on transmission lines a mile or more from the lightning discharge, because of "wireless" or induction effect, so many sparks are caused by voltages induced in metal parts of the tank, even though the tank is not struck directly. A spark caused by a lightning stroke several miles away may ignite the mixture. If a tank were made completely of insulating material, there could be no spark, but there are always pipes, nails and conducting strips more or less isolated.

Grounded wires strung over the tank, as in the case of a protected transmission line, would reduce the danger, but it would only mean that the storm would have to come closer to cause the spark. The only safe method where there is explosive gas is a complete metal tank, inside of which no sparks can occur. Even then there is danger when projections extend from the surface. There are a number of principles that can be applied to prevent the tank from being struck. It has been found, for instance, that lightning never strikes the ground nearer a conducting rod than four times its height. A number of rods properly placed about the tank would either take the hits or cause the lightning to strike the ground some distance away. Grounded wires strung over the tank, a grounded metal net or metal roof also afford a protection. The researches showed that a standing man is fifteen times more likely to be struck than a man lying flat on the ground.

Did You Ever Stop to Think

By Edson R. Walte, Secretary, Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce

E. W. JORGENSEN, EDITOR OF THE SPOKANE (WASHINGTON) PRESS, SAYS:

THAT primitive man hunted alone. He broke his club from a tree and trailed the animal that was weak enough to succumb to a one-man attack. It was a dreary, back-busting job.

Then, like electricity surging through a copper wire giving energy, light and heat, the savage brain caught the idea of United Effort and thus the COMMUNITY PLAN was born. That spark of intelligence, coming from us, we know not where, told early man to hunt in packs and so the term "Bigger and Better" was first coined. For the prehistoric gentleman discovered that he could get "BIGGER AND BETTER" meals through united effort against the stegosaurus and other "cattle" of that early day than he could by fighting alone.

Because it so successfully filled empty stomachs, the community idea became popular and thus was developed the early clan life, then the village, the town, and now the marvelous complex city of the present era.

All through the ages the Community idea has been man's bright star in the march of progress. Get together and stick together was and is yet the slogan.

In prehistoric times the community booster "popped" the invader on the bean so that the village could not be sacked and the women carried away.

Nowadays we do not swat invaders from other communities. Instead we feed them elaborate luncheons and talk not only community progress but state and national growth as well. And our women meet their women and take them to teas and for auto drives to show 'em the real estate.

We hold meetings and conventions and other sorts of gatherings for every kind of general "Biggerment and Betterment." And it is good. For this is what has made America great with its splendid cities, large and small, and all the fine things and people within them.

WE NEED NOT BUILD A MONUMENT TO THAT FIRST SAVAGE WHO "INVENTED" THE COMMUNITY IDEA, BUT WE NEVER SHOULD QUIT DEVELOPING HIS PLAN FOR THERE IS NOTHING BETTER IN LIFE THAN THAT OF GETTING TOGETHER AND MAKING THINGS BETTER FOR THE OTHER FELLOW—AND CONSEQUENTLY—OURSELVES!

Tolerant Indeed

When the Hawaiian queen appealed to Grover Cleveland stating that her kingdom and authority had been seized by armed forces led by an American citizen, the American president ordered that she be restored to her throne. Sanford Dole, and those co-operating with him said that they would do nothing of the kind.

They can hardly be blamed for this, in view of the fact that the queen of the many syllabled name was something of a reactionary, herself. When President Cleveland's special messenger waited on her and said he was authorized to do what he could toward her restoration, providing her policy, when restored to power, would be one of kindness, tolerance, and consideration for others, and that no one connected with the recent revolution would be severely punished, the queen declared her perfect willingness to carry out such a program, but said that, as a matter of course, all persons who had taken part in her dethronement would be decapitated and their property seized by the state. Such was the good lady's idea of a liberal and tolerant policy.
